Dist. 9 teachers voting on ratification tonight

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Negotiations between the District 9 school board and Secretarial Council members of Granite City Federation of Teachers Local 743 may have reached an end, calling for ratification votes by both secretaries and teachers.

The two sides reached a tentative agreement Friday night, board spokesman Terry Salem said. "I don't know what will happen from here but the situation is better than it was."

The secretaries were scheduled to meet for a ratification vote Tuesday night. There are about 35 members in the secretarial unit.

Teachers reached a tentative agreement with the board Sept. 26 and have awaited the end of secretarial negotiations to hold a vote on their contract.

"The secretaries have reached a tentative agreement and that's what we've been waiting for," Shirley Stoll, Local 743 president, said.

Teachers will hold a ratification vote at 7 tonight (Wednesday). Meanwhile, negotiations with the district's cooks and custodians are continuing. No date has been set, but Salem said the sides probably will meet again on Thursday or Friday.

Kitty Dukakis' supporters hoping for large turnout at Democratic HQ today

GRANITE CITY — Local Democrats are planning to roll out the red carpet for Kitty Dukakis, wife of Democratic presidential candidate Gov. Michael Dukakis, when she arrives in town at about 3 p.m. today at the Madison County Democratic campaign headquarters at 1967 Niedringhaus Avenue.

"We're trying to get a good crowd," said Dan Partney, a member of the county Democratic Executive Committee which is coordinating her appearance.

"It's not too often we get the wife of a presidential candidate here. We haven't had this kind of attention since 1980 when Jimmy Carter was here."

Mrs. Dukakis is expected to succeed where her son, John, failed. The younger Dukakis was slated to appear in Granite two weeks ago, but was called back to Massachusetts to be with his wife, who is expecting a child.

Partney said local dignitaries will be on hand to greet Mrs. Dukakis, and the public is invited.

At press time, the police department here had not been contacted about providing assistance for the event, a spokesman said. The U.S. Secret Service, which handles protection for presidential candidates and families, was unclear on Mrs. Dukakis' schedule on Monday afternoon, but did expect her to be in the area.

Nameoki joins MESD tax supporters

By Nicole Vaughn

NAMEOKI — With only one member opposing, the Township Board passed a resolution supporting the passage of a tax increase for the Metro East Sanitary District.

"It's not a popular resolution," Supervisor Harry Briggs Sr. said. "However, if we don't do this, it might be our last shot at getting something like this to safeguard our homes and property from flooding."

But Trustee Del Whitsell was not convinced. "I can't see where it will help the majority of taxpayers in Nameoki Township," she said.

Briggs contended that if the floodgates were to fail, residents could end up like East St. Louis, as did in 1986.

"If that happens, it would inundate this area with water," Briggs said.

After similar statements from other trustees, Whitsell still maintained a negative stance on the MESD tax. "It is putting a burden on us that will benefit East St. Louis," Whitsell said.

"I don't like taxes," Trustee Joe Garcia said. "In fact, Edwardsville raised its taxes something ridiculous and I know

Plant explosion leaves one dead, four injured

VENICE — A Madison man was killed and four other employees injured in an explosion Saturday night at Spectralite Consortium Inc., College Street and Weaver Avenue.

Myles James, 30, 401 W. Third

St. was pronounced dead at 10:45 p.m. by Madison County Deputy Coroner Ed Morton, following a magnesium explosion at 9:50 p.m. in the foundry at the plant.

Madison County Coroner Dallas Burke said James was killed while using a mechanical bucket mounted on a forklift to skim impurities from a vessel containing molten magnesium. The magnesium exploded when the bucket made contact with the molten metal, showering James and hitting the others nearby.

Molten magnesium oxidizes rapidly on contact with water, and workers told Deputy Coroner

GRANITE CITY — The rumor that the U.S. Army Charles Melvin Price Center may be on the chopping block is only a rumor and unlikely to come true, according to both the Granite City and Madison mayors.

The Price center was named on a possible "hit list" published in a recent issue of U.S. News and World Report.

"Of course, I'm really concerned," said Granite City Mayor Von Dee Cruse. "I'm sure along with all the people in the area, it's not good news. But as long as it's only a rumor it's not bad news either."

"At this time there is a question if there is a list or not."

"I feel about it like everybody else," said Madison Mayor John Bellico. "But I'm sure that Sen. Alan Dixon, our good friend Sen. Paul Simon and our new Rep. Jerry Costello (21st District) will do everything possible to keep it open."

"I think it is impossible to close it. It is needed in the area, it is active and it is utilized."

Bellico said it would be a shame to close the center after naming it for the late Rep. Mel Price.

"I think it is sad," Bellico said. "But I don't think it is going to close."

Cruse said he would talk with the members of congress, but that even if the worst proves to be true it is not an unsurmountable disaster.

He said the military was getting ready to build 100 houses there at a cost of $9 million and that military authorities had indicated they planned to make the center a port for shipping the privately owned automobiles of military and civilian personnel stationed overseas.

"They were talking about 30 to 35 thousand cars a year," Cruse said.

"They presented quite a future for the center, in the next five years a lot of things were anticipated happening there. I hope those plans materialize."

Eagleton named to base study commission

By Judy Fahys
States News Service

WASHINGTON — Former U.S. Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton has been selected to serve on a national task force on military base closings, the Defense Department announced Friday.

Eagleton, a St. Louis attorney, one-time vice presidential nominee and three-term senator from Missouri, was the 11th person named to the Commission on Base Realignment and Closure.

Eagleton graduated from Harvard Law School cum laude after serving in the U.S. Navy from 1949-49. He now teaches political science, government and business at Washington University.

The 12-person commission has until Dec. 31 to compile a list of U.S. military bases that should be closed or scaled back. Congress can block the project, but only if it votes down the commission's entire plan.

Although members of Congress and the past three Presidents have agreed that some bases are not cost-effective, pork barrel pressures have mud-died attempts to make cuts. Still, advocates say that annual savings could be as high as $5 billion.

Christmas basket applications due starting Nov. 14

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Quad City Area families and individuals wishing to apply for Christmas baskets and related aid through the Salvation Army may do so in person starting Monday, Nov. 14, at the Salvation Army Community Center, 907 E. 23rd St.

This year, applications will be accepted only for an eight-day period, Capt. Curtiss Hartley, Salvation Army commander, said. The final date to apply is Nov. 23.

Hours at the office for accepting basket applications will be from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Those seeking assistance are required to go to the center in person, bringing with them adequate identification, said Maxine Rutter, office manager.

A current rent receipt and the most recent utility bill are required before an application will be completed for each family or individual.

Proof of income also must be shown at the time of application. A current payroll check stub or a Public Aid green card, if the family is served by that agency, will be accepted, Rutter said.

The person applying also must know the income of each person in the household and the ages of each individual living there.

The holiday assistance program is financed through the local "Tree of Lights" campaign.

Pontoon de-annexes airfield

The former Lakeside Airport, known as Nichols Airfield, on Illinois 111 opposite Horseshoe Lake State Park, was de-annexed from Pontoon Beach last week by a unanimous vote of the trustees. Owner Bill Nicholas had objected to the annexation.

21st District candidates to debate

Candidates to represent the 21st Congressional District in the Nov. 8 election, Democrat U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello and Republican Robert Gaffner, will be matched in a public debate at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville at 7:30 p.m. today. The debate will be in the Meridian Ballroom of the University Center.

Future of Price Center in jeopardy

A national magazine report last week suggests that three Illinois military bases, including the Charles Melvin Price Support Center, Illinois 3 and Niedringhaus Avenue, could be on the chopping block if Congress accepts the recommendations of a special commission on base closures. Both Illinois Democratic Sen. Alan Dixon and U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello vowed to fight any attempt to close the 930-acre base.

Top citizen

Sr. Mary Thomas, chairman of St. Elizabeth Medical Center, was named Citizen of Achievement by the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce. She was honored for her years of service to the community. "Her most notable decision, for us at least, was to keep her institution in Granite City, rather than move it to an outlying area," said Mary Brown, chairman of the chamber's Community Betterment Committee.

HALLOWEEN HORRORS abound in the yard of Frank Marsala, 3314 Franklin Ave., in time for trick-or-treaters the grave of Freddie Kruger of Nightmare on Elm Street movie background that includes the grave of Freddie Kruger, a variety of Halloween fiends add to the creepy atmosphere in the yard of the home. Several surprises will greet visitors as well. Trick-or-treating throughout the area will be from 6 to 9 p.m. only on Halloween night Monday.

POLITICAL SIGN BURNED: Little remains of a sign reading "Gaffner for Congress" attached to a wood stockade fence at the home of Janet Wilson, 3161 Davis Ave. The sign and surface of the fence were found burning late Wednesday afternoon by a neighbor who extinguished the fire. Wilson said the incident, apparently politically motivated, will not make her back down on displaying signs for Republican candidates. She said she has the Constitutional right to display the signs. The police report listed damage to a fence post and gate estimated at $150. Wilson was not home at the time of the fire.

Central Bank helping in Halloween safety

The National Crime Prevention Council is joining Central Bank in a campaign to promote Halloween safety for area children.

During the week of Oct. 24-29, all Central Bank locations will be distributing free Halloween Trick or Treat bags from the National Crime Prevention Council. Each bag carries the NCPCC "McGruff" crime dog logo and a list of educational tips for safe trick or treating.

The National Crime Prevention Council is promoting the goal of preventing people from becoming victims of crime during October, which is Crime Prevention Month.

Central Bank is a member of the Central Banc System Inc. bank holding company, with locations in Granite City, Glen Carbon, Fairview Heights and Marine.

Wolf, Voloski: Same whats, but different whys and hows

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The only local race with active contenders is for state representative in the 11th District.

State Rep. Sam Wolf, a Granite City Democrat, has represented the 11th for 11 years and, according to most local politicians, is a sure winner again this election.

His Republican opponent, Tom Voloski, Madison, calls himself "the first serious opponent Sam Wolf has ever faced."

Wolf supports the Metro East Sanitary District tax increase. "There is a problem in this area with ground and runoff water and there has been a problem for some time," he said. "If the area is ever going to get back on its feet economically, we're going to have to address the problem."

"The situation, the problem, is there for whatever reason, but it needs to be addressed. The federal government has $23 million there if we agree to (the increase). How many years would it be before we get an offer like that again?"

"I say go with the program now that Congressmen Mel Price got it for us as one of his last acts in Congress."

Voloski disagrees. "I'm not for that tax," Voloski said. "I've lived in the area all my life and the same people have been in office most of my life. That problem existed years ago and nothing was done because of a lack of leadership. They are now asking taxpayers to carry the burden for their inefficiency."

"The federal government doesn't give you anything — that's tax dollars, not free money."

"There has been a need (to address the problem) for a long time. I can't understand why Rep. Wolf didn't do something 10 years ago, at a time when it could have been done for a lot less money. He is our representative. He should have addressed this years ago."

Both candidates agree transportation into and out of the Quad City area needs improvement.

Wolf said he had established a transportation committee that includes representatives from each of the area municipalities. It meets on a regular basis. One of the major concerns, he said, is improvement of access roads to I-255 and other main routes. "We've been meeting with the Illinois Department of Transportation and they have gone over our recommendations," Wolf said. "We have shown we are unified in what we are going to do."

Wolf said IDOT has said that Venice overpass repair, at a cost of $14 million, is scheduled to begin in December and that a complete survey of needs of Madison's McCambridge Avenue overpass is being made.

"At Maryville Road, Illinois 162, we need either an overpass or underpass," Wolf said.

Voloski also believes there is a need for an overpass at Illinois 162 and Maryville Road.

"The Quad City area is an island surrounded by Interstate highways that lead to other places," Voloski said, "not to downtown Granite City or Madison. When whoever came up with the idea to build (Illinois) 3, they doomed the downtown. They took all the traffic and diverted it around our area."

Voloski said railroads cut off the area almost completely and that, once someone coming in was forced to wait on a train, he would never try coming back again.

Voloski said he opposes an electric rate increase by Illinois Power, and supports increased funding for education and most social programs, especially the Circuit Breaker property tax exemption.

He said he has wanted to ask the people of the 11th District if they know who their state representative is, or — if they have a problem with state government — if they know who to contact.

If people have taken a problem to their representative, he says, he would like to know if it has been solved quickly and efficiently.

Does, he asked, their representative represent their interests or the interests of Majority Leader Jim McPike?

Voloski said, "Putting up some signs, but a lot of knocking on doors. One of the questions I'm asked is 'What can you do about the power rate increase?'"

"As a candidate I can do nothing. As a representative I could."

"I'm talking about a guy who would work 365 days a year for the people of the 11th. All I'm asking is to be given the opportunity. Then, if you don't like what's getting done, vote me out."

Wolf is also against the IP rate increase plan and said he would be at the Illinois Commerce Commission meeting to oppose it.

Wolf said that, in him, the people of the 11th have the commitment of a full-time representative.

"I work every day, 8 to 12 hours a day," Wolf said. "Anybody who thinks this is a part-time job lives in another time. It might have been true years ago, but not today."

"My job is to make myself available."

"Rep. McPike is the majority leader. I take pleasure and privilege in working with him. It's only by working together in cooperation that anything gets done."

"If you operate on a policy of opposition you're not going to get anything done for your constituents. If my opponent thinks otherwise it just shows how out of touch he is with the real world. I will continue to work with him (McPike) and he with me."

Voloski grew up in Madison. He worked as a steelworker and later operated a catering business and restaurant there.

He served nearly 16 years as a Madison policeman before resigning because, he said at the time, "I find it difficult to operate effectively as a police officer for the residents of Madison." He is employed by the Illinois secretary of state in the Driver Examination Office.

Wolf grew up in Venice, worked as a steelworker and later operated a real estate and insurance business in Granite City.

Madison forum on schools' fate

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

MADISON — John Hamm III, school board president, has proposed to take the fate of the former Madison Junior High School to the public.

"I motion that we hold an open forum on the old junior high building and leave it up to the public," Hamm said. "We need to bring the public back in and let them tell us their wishes."

"Until then, they'll just have to look at it a while longer."

Discussion about the Third Street building began after Maintenance Supervisor Eldor Rhoads reported to the board that one side of the abandoned building had been boarded up to protect windows and deter vandals. Materials used had been donated by Granite City Steel.

Board members Billie Bosworth and James Newsome voiced concern that only one side had been covered and member Bruce Trotts felt similarly about the now unused Louis Baer Elementary School.

"Why don't we just sell the school?" Newsome asked. "Why spend more money boarding it up?"

Supt. Dan Kostencki said the school could not be sold due to its asbestos-contaminated ceiling tiles, which might cost $40,000 to $50,000 to remove. He said the building could be demolished for $35,000, but in that event the asbestos would have to be removed beforehand.

Rhoads estimated the value of materials provided by Granite City Steel at $1,000 and said the district might have to furnish money for such supplies to finish the junior high and cover Louis Baer.

The board voted to have both buildings boarded up if more donated materials become available.

It also was decided to hold a public meeting on the building issue at a date to be decided at the next regular meeting.

Kennedy urges locals to support Dukakis

By Martin Richter
Staff affiliate

BELLEVILLE — A young man with a jacket and tie and a curly hair stepped out of a brown van and waded into the crowd gathered outside Democratic Headquarters on the Square Oct. 16.

His face lit up with a broad smile as he shook hands and slapped backs, making his way towards the door.

"How are ya? I'm Joe Kennedy. Nice to see ya," he said. As he made his way inside, the crowd surged behind him like a wave. The Kennedy charisma is alive and well.

U.S. Rep. Joseph P. Kennedy II, D-Mass., visited Belleville and East St. Louis on a Sunday to drum up support for Democratic presidential hopeful Mike Dukakis and U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, who is seeking a full House term.

Kennedy is the son of the late U.S. Sen. Robert Kennedy, and the nephew of the late Pres. John F. Kennedy.

He arrived in Belleville at 9:30 a.m. and made a brief speech to a crowd of about 60 people who had gathered for his visit. Afterward, he found a few minutes for autographs and another round of handshaking before heading for another speech in East St. Louis.

In his 10-minute speech at Belleville Democratic headquarters, Kennedy hammered on some familiar Democratic themes — jobs, foreign competition, the national deficit, poverty and education.

"There are people and forces in this country who don't want to assist the basic working families," Kennedy said. "The basic working families whose blood and sweat and tears make this country go."

"(The Republicans) tell you unemployment is down," he added. "But what they don't tell you is that fully 50 percent of the new jobs this administration has produced don't pay enough to get out of poverty. They're creating a nation of hamburger flippers."

Kennedy criticized what he called "fraud and waste" in the defense budget, and said U.S. allies in Europe and Asia should contribute more to their national defenses.

He noted that the U.S. spends about 7 percent of its gross national product on defense, while most European countries spend about 3 percent, and Japan spends only 1 percent. He said the U.S. spends about one third of its defense budget, or $100 billion a year, on defending other countries.

"Last year the Japanese spent more money playing pinball than on national defense," he said.

Some people in the crowd said they are staunch Democrats who turned out to show their support for Costello and Dukakis. Many brought their children to get a chance to meet Kennedy and to get a glimpse of the electoral process.

Ruth Gregory of Granite City hoisted a cardboard sign that said "Money Trickles Up" as she waited for Kennedy with her children, Christopher, 5, and Rachel, 3.

"I think it's important for them to realize they need to be part of the democratic process," she said of her youngsters.

Jim and Polly Ellner of Belleville brought their daughter Phenicia, 9. Phenicia said she is for Dukakis "because my parents are."

Marilyn Neumeyer of Swansea was particularly interested in Kennedy's mention of the need for more education funding.

"I've got a daughter in college," Neumeyer said. "If we aren't careful, college will be a thing of the past. I've had to get a second job to keep her in college."

Learn to drive in fog

By Secretary of State
Jim Edgar

Rapidly changing temperatures in Illinois this time of year can result in fog, which reduces visibility and makes driving hazardous. Be prepared to alter your driving habits if fog appears suddenly.

Motorists should avoid driving in fog whenever possible. However, if you must drive, take the following safety precautions and drive defensively:

1. Slow down. Reduce your speed even more if you see headlights or taillights in front of you. Headlights may be on a vehicle coming down the center of the road. Taillights can indicate a stopped vehicle or one that is barely moving.

2. Dim your headlights. Low beams direct light onto the road ahead, help you see more clearly and help others to see you. Light from high beams hits the fog and is reflected off it. Illinois law prohibits driving with parking lights only.

3. Do not overdrive your headlights. Stay within the limits of your vision and be prepared to stop in an emergency. If the fog becomes so dense that you can hardly see, pull off the road cautiously and stop. Do not drive on the highway at five or 10 miles per hour.

Driving safely in fog takes concentration and patience. Remember to slow down, dim your headlights and, if necessary, pull off the road and wait for the fog to clear.

Opinion polls: Just how good are they?

By John Lenger
Staff affiliate

So you've just seen a poll saying 52 percent of voters prefer George Bush for president, 48 percent prefer Mike Dukakis, and the poll has a 4 percent margin for error. But you've got some questions.

For instance, how accurately do these numbers reflect what's really going on in the minds of Americans? What's that "margin for error" mean?

And are polls really as good at predicting the outcomes of elections as say, Bush's horoscope for Nov. 8, or the leaves in Dukakis' morning cup of tea? Sandra Christie, president of Fact Finders Inc., a marketing research firm in Maryland Heights, says polls are very accurate, as long as they're done right.

Polls are like wine. There's a certain art that goes into the making of them, and there's a direct correlation between quality and price.

"Any kind of reasonable poll is going to be somewhat expensive," Christie said. "The truth of the matter is that good data, no matter what it is, is expensive."

Christie said that when she tries to judge how accurate a poll is, she looks at who compiled it, and how it was done.

Was the poll done by a reputable organization which followed standard procedures, such as using a random sampling of the population and making sure questions were phrased the same way to each person?

Or was it done by a group with an axe to grind, in a setting where interviewers called their friends and neighbors?

As you would expect, there can be big differences in the results.

Professional pollsters ideally try to capture what's going on in the "real world," Christie said. But without polling every single person, that's impossible to do.

So pollsters have compiled tables to help determine statistically just how far off they may be from the real results. That's the margin of error.

Three factors go into figuring the margin of error, Christie said. The first is the response rate, which is the number of people who agree to answer questions over the phone, as opposed to those who hang up. Since the people who hang up tend to have different characteristics than those who answer, the numbers will be thrown off slightly.

The second factor is the number of people surveyed.

The third factor is the "confidence rate," which Christie said really measures how sure of the results the person paying for the poll wants to be. A confidence rate of 95 percent is standard, though academics sometimes demand a 99-percent rate and businesses will often settle for 90 percent.

With an 80-percent response rate, a 95-percent confidence rate and 200 people in a survey, the margin for error is plus or minus 5.7 percent.

Madison board votes to borrow on future taxes

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

MADISON — The District 12 Board of Education has voted to accept a bid from the First National Bank in Madison on four corporate replacement tax warrants, each valued at $55,000, at a 9 percent interest rate.

"We don't plan to use this money unless we have to," District 12 Superintendent of Schools Dan Kostensen told the board. "I think this will help solve some of our cash flow problems."

The school district has suffered a financial squeeze in recent months.

A few weeks ago, the board authorized the tax anticipation warrants to place $220,000 into the education fund, for use primarily to meet required salary payments to employees.

The warrants are a temporary measure utilized to meet immediate monetary needs. They must be paid off by the end of the school year, officials said.

The schools are borrowing from future receipts of the corporate tax, which replaced the personal property tax formerly levied against corporations.

Halloween's here

'Horror' on parade Oct. 31

It's guaranteed! A Hollywood horror movie would offer nothing better than would the enjoyment of a visit to the Quad City area on Halloween night — Monday, Oct. 31.

A "trick or treat" chorus of tiny, high-pitched voices will soon be heard from small, creepy creatures lurking near the front door while ghoulish shadows hover in the background.

Small trick-or-treaters garbed as clowns or ghosts, even dancing raisins or "Pee Wee," will be haunting the neighborhoods.

Parents are reminded that special hours — from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. Monday — have been set aside for house-calling tricksters in Madison, Venice and Pontoon Beach, the police chiefs of the three cities said.

Children may start their visits a little earlier in Granite City — no specific time has been set — but must end their neighborhood treks by 9 p.m., a police spokesman says.

The traditional Halloween Night parade through downtown Granite City again will be sponsored by Moose Lodge 272, starting at 7 p.m. Monday at the City Hall entrance on Niedringhaus Avenue.

Costumed paraders wishing to compete for cash awards are being asked to assemble at the starting point by 6:15 p.m. Monday to receive marcher numbers.

A total of $200 in prize money will be offered to youngsters up to age 16 in three different categories — funniest, scariest and most original.

First, second and third place contestants will be selected by a panel of judges, according to Bob Thebeau, Moose civic affairs and parade chairman.

Judges will include Mayor Von Dee Gruse, 6th Ward Alderman Judy Whitaker, R C Bush, executive director, Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, Shirley Bush of the Chamber office, Janet Mills, a Chamber ambassador, and Police Lt. Don Knight.

The paraders will march east to State Street, south on State to 19th Street, west on 19th to Edison Avenue and north on Edison to Niedringhaus Avenue, returning to the City Hall steps for judging, Thebeau said.

Parents or a responsible young person should escort youngsters from home to the downtown parade area, and also accompany younger children on trick and treating jaunts around their neighborhoods, the police chiefs said.

In the event of rain, paraders will assemble beneath the canopied section of the Magna Bank and Granite City Steel office building at 20th and State streets for judging, Thebeau said.

Children are being cautioned not to enter homes and to make friendly trick or treat calls only at homes in their own neighborhood.

Residents are being urged to turn on porch and yard lights from dusk to 9 p.m. Monday to help safeguard youngsters visiting homes.

GC Jaycees to haunt house

An unusual haunted house with "live monsters" is promised to patrons visiting the Granite City Jaycees Halloween spectacular.

It opens Thursday at the Jaycees Hall formerly the Knights of Columbus Hall, 2054 Edison Ave.

Jaycee President John Soles said the public is invited to tour the 10th annual haunted house and meet such characters as a live Frankenstein and werewolves.

Special effects will be used to intrigue and scare the visitors, who will be charged $2 for adults and guests and $1 for children 12 and younger.

Proceeds from the haunted house will be used by the Jaycees to help finance Thanksgiving baskets for needy families, according to Norman Burgess and Gene Polman, project chairman.

The haunted house will remain open through Monday, Oct. 31.

Halloween party for Venice

A Halloween party for children from infants through 10 years old will be held Monday, Oct. 31, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Venice Recreation Center, 323 Broadway.

All children must be accompanied by a parent.

The Halloween Night party will be sponsored by the City of Venice and the Venice Concerned Citizens group, Mayor Tyrone Echols said.

Costume parade in Pontoon

The annual Pontoon Beach Lions Club's Halloween parade for 1988 is set for Saturday, Oct. 29, at the Long Lake Volunteer Fire Department's fire station.

Registration will begin at 12:30 p.m. and the parade of costumes will start at 1 p.m.

Cash prizes will be awarded for first, second and third place in each of the following age groups:

• 3 years and younger.

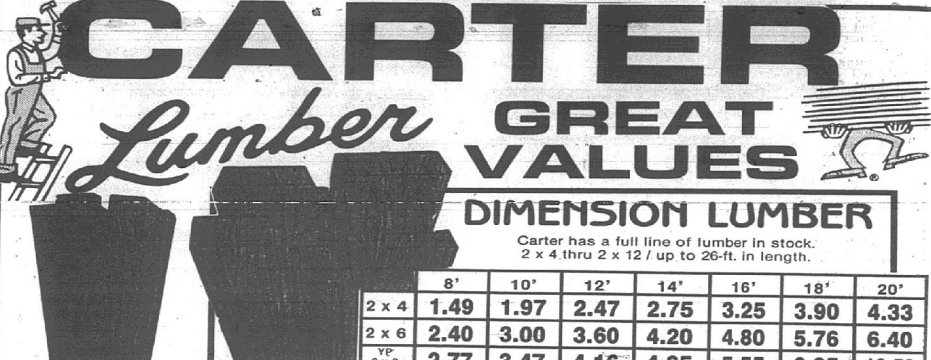

• 4 and 5 years old.

• 6 and 7 years old.

• 8 through 12 years of age.

Each first prize will be $20, second $15 and third, $10.

There will be "tricks or treats" for each participant. In case of rain, the parade will be held at the Pontoon Beach Senior Center Hall.

Seniors endorse Costello

BELLEVEILLE — U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello picked up what his campaign manager termed a "key endorsement" Oct. 13 from a senior citizens group which also donated $1,000 to his campaign.

Dave Wagner, campaign manager for the Belleville Democrat, said the endorsement by the Illinois State Council of Senior Citizens' Organizations should be important in the Nov. 8 election. That election pits Costello against Republican Bob Gaffner of Greenville.

"I think any politician would tell you the first group you want to have supporting you is the older Americans," Wagner said. "That's the group that goes to the polls, and they vote their concerns and their pocketbooks."

Gaffner, however, said that while he doesn't want to discount the endorsement, he doesn't think it means much, either.

"Well, I'm a senior citizen and a member of AARP (American Association of Retired Persons) and he doesn't have my endorsement," said Gaffner, who added he will be 56 on Nov. 3, five days before the election.

The state council represents several hundred clubs, church and labor retiree groups, senior centers and agencies, according to the organization's literature. It's affiliated with the National Council of Senior Citizens Inc., which also endorsed Costello and kicked in the $1,000 donation through its political action committee.

The endorsement was announced at Costello campaign headquarters in the rear of the 101 Club in Belleville by a dozen of the organization's leaders, who called themselves "Truth Drivers."

Their "Truth Drive," scheduled to hit 15 Illinois cities, was set up to let senior citizens spread the word about candidates the organization endorses, said Jane Phelan, an organizer with the National Council of Senior Citizens.

When questioned by reporters, many of the senior leaders were a little vague about why the organization endorsed Costello. About the best several of them could come up with was he's being endorsed because "he supports senior citizens."

Phelan explained the "Truth Drivers" weren't the people who wrote the endorsement; that was done by higher-level leaders who analyzed voting records and questionnaires completed by "every person running for Congress in Illinois" before deciding on endorsements.

The day was saved, however, by Costello's mother, Elsie.

Elsie Costello, 73, accepted the endorsement and the $1,000 check on her young son's behalf, since he had to be in Washington while Congress was in session.

"Jerry has worked for the senior citizens for the last 7½ years, and anything that he could do for them he has," Elsie Costello said. "Unlike my politician sons, I'm not a very good speaker. I just want to tell you that Jerry will work for senior citizens."

Marketing polls impact candidates' actions

By John Lenger
Staff affiliate

Public opinion polls started out being just what their name implied: Surveys conducted with the man-in-the-street, for the man-in-the-street.

The "final consumer" of the information gathered was the average American; politicians could pay attention to the wishes expressed through the polls, or pay the price at election time.

Folsters such as George Gallup, credited with developing 50-plus years ago the scientific procedures most pollsters use today, saw such polls as the ultimate way for the public to influence politicians.

Politicians recently have turned the tables, however, by using the polls to influence voters.

Republican congressional candidate Bob Gaffner and a spokesman for Rep. Jerry Costello, who Gaffner is trying to unseat on Nov. 8, both said candidates tend to rely more on their instincts than on polls, though both campaigns have used polls to gather information.

A marketing researcher in Maryland Heights, however, said she thinks polls have a direct impact on how candidates act.

"I think most of these people respond directly," said Sandra Christie, president of Fact Finders Inc. in Maryland Heights.

"Take (Democratic presidential candidate Michael) Dukakis, for example. I think there was a poll that said 'Voters want you to be less cold and distant; you need to be more of a warm fuzzy.' And he seems to be responding to that."

Gaffner said that although he's done little polling, what he has done has been valuable.

For instance, a name recognition survey done in May by American Viewpoint, a Republican-affiliated pollster in Washington, D.C., found 60 percent of the people in Metro East recognized Gaffner's name. That survey provided a tremendous psychological boost to his campaign, Gaffner said.

"I hadn't been out there actively campaigning since 1986, and to have that kind of name recognition, I felt that showed something," Gaffner said.

Since the Aug. 9 special general election, in which Costello defeated Gaffner by a slim margin, Gaffner said he's been using the election results to guide him.

"We've not gone into the field with a poll, and that's because we had the very best poll available: the results of the Aug. 9 election," he said.

Gaffner said he's been using his election results "poll" to figure out which areas he should campaign in more. He has spent more time in East St. Louis, which delivered the last election for Costello, and other areas which seemed to be leaning toward him.

Brian Lott, Costello's campaign spokesman, said Costello has used polls mostly to keep track of what issues are uppermost in voters' minds. Over the summer, for instance, voters were very concerned about the drought; now it's a dead issue.

As the presidential race has heated up, local voters have become concerned with new issues, such as health insurance, the death penalty and the Pledge of Allegiance—all of which a knowledgeable candidate might want to make statements about, Lott said.

"Say our poll shows people in a certain geographic area or people in a certain demographic group don't know much about what Jerry Costello's position is on senior citizens," Lott said. "That would be something you would have to take action on within the next couple of weeks."

Lott also said candidates are secretive about their polls for fear of influencing the wrong groups in the wrong way. A candidate who has a big lead, for example, doesn't want to release a poll saying that because voters may become complacent. "People may think 'He's got it in the bag,' and then they wouldn't go out and vote as they normally would," Lott said.

BAC sets new tuition rates for spring

By Rick Arnold
Staff affiliate

BELLEVEILLE — As expected, the Belleville Area College Board of Trustees Oct. 19 approved variable tuition rates for the spring semester at all campuses, including Granite City's.

Beginning Jan. 14, the start of the spring semester, tuition will be $27 per credit hour for a new Afternoon College program, and $30 per credit hour for all other classes.

The current tuition rate, $28 per semester credit hour, went into effect in March 1987.

BAC President Joe Cipri said the $2 increase will generate $370,000 in revenue. Cipri said the increase is necessary to fund much-needed repairs of college facilities, made necessary by increased enrollments.

The vote was 6 to 1, with Trustee Ted Farmer opposing the move.

Farmer said he likes the idea but fears the additional money will be used inappropriately.

"There's only a few people around here, like (Trustee) Dan (Wolford), who are really committed to straightening out (salary) inequities around here," Farmer said. "I am opposed to generating new revenues to create new inequities rather than to correct old problems."

The Afternoon College program will include 60 classes, to be held from 2 to 5 p.m. weekdays. The board approved the Afternoon College program based on the recommendations of Cipri and the board's finance committee, comprised of Trustees Larry Reineck, Van Smith and Kay Bennett.

Cipri said the Afternoon College will make better use of the college facilities. He also feels the lower tuition rate should attract part-time workers, mothers who stay home during the day with their children, and high school students who want to get a head start on college.

In other action, the board, on a 5-2 vote, approved salary increases and title changes for nine staff members. The move, based on the recommendations of the college's personnel review committee, will cost a total of $8,371.

None of the title changes involved top administrative positions.

Farmer and Wolford voted against the measure, with Farmer again blasting the board for "a lack of consistency" for allowing what he perceives as salary inequities among staff members.

"I'd hate for us to have the job of lining a football field; we'd be drawing concentric circles," Farmer said. "I think we have to be consistent and, by golly, we're not."

Man charged in Jethrow robbery

PONTOON BEACH — Richard W. Edwards, 19, Edwardsville, was charged with the Oct. 19 armed robbery of Jethrow's Quick Shop on Illinois 162 in a felony information issued Thursday through the Madison County State's Attorney's Office.

Edwards allegedly displayed a knife while demanding money from a woman clerk at the store, located near Eduardo Drive and Moellenbrock Road.

Approximately $255 was taken from the shop, Chief Chet Ballew said.

The alleged robber fled from the store on foot, but passersby noticed a car leaving the area at high speed and described the vehicle to police, noting that one headlight was out. A description of the car and driver was broadcast over the ISPERN radio channel.

A few minutes later, Granite

City Police Sgt. Rich Schardan saw a vehicle matching the description, traveling north on Nameoki Road at East 25th Street.

Schardan stopped the car in the 2900 block of Nameoki Road and held Edwards, whose clothing and description tallied with information transmitted over the police radio net, until Pontoon Patrolman Gary Wallace arrived at the scene.

Ballew said he was "definitely pleased with the way things went" in the arrest of Edwards.

Dennis Linkeman, owner of Jethrow's, praised the police officers for their quick action. "Their response time was great," he said.

Bond on Edwards was set at $75,000 and he was transferred to the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville.

Wilson School shows patriotism by singing

GRANITE CITY — After a two-week contest, first through sixth graders at Wilson School learned and individually performed "The Star Spangled Banner" for their classmates.

Contestants in the "Patriots Club" contest were rewarded with a "membership card" for that organization and their name was posted near an American flag display representing the entire school's progress. When an entire class of students earned membership, a stripe was adhered to the hallway flag.

The goal was for the flag to be completed as soon as possible, representing the entire school's knowledge of our national anthem, a goal achieved in two weeks.

The program was devised and supervised by Alicia Poplichak, music instructor.

$600,000 contract at Scott to renovate officers club

By Edward T. Hearn
P-R/J Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — The United States Air Force has awarded a Collinsville company a contract worth nearly $600,000 to renovate the 30-year-old officers club at Scott Air Force Base, according to Pentagon records.

Rule Construction Co., a Madison County-based firm which won the contract in competitive bidding, will begin the work in January in accordance with its three-month Air Force pact.

Keith Rule, the company's vice president, said, "We are removing asbestos and an old boiler system."

"We are completely gutting the kitchen area of the officers club, as well as redoing the heating, plumbing, electrical and fire systems."

Rule, a Collinsville native, employs between 30 and 40 people, depending on the pace of business.

He said his company has won Pentagon contracts at Scott before.

He added that the local economy benefits when contracts go to his firm and others within close proximity to the base.

Rule said that the $593,178 contract to refurbish the Military Airlift Command officers' club was a sizeable project but not among the company's largest for work performed elsewhere.

"We have done projects of up to $2.5 million, so it's not out of the ordinary," Rule said.

Scott is one of the nation's largest air bases. It is located near Belleville.

Bridge fund transfer fails

WASHINGTON — Attempts by Illinois transportation officials to redirect $24 million in U.S. Department of Transportation money from a stalled Peoria bridge project to an Alton bridge project failed, according to state and federal officials.

Learning disabled need understanding

With all the emphasis these days on educational toys for children, superbaby programs to teach early skills and parents who push their children to excel, you might get the impression that children with learning problems are a thing of the past.

This definitely is not the case. The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) has released the following facts on school problems in children.

•When a child cannot reach his full learning potential, the problem is described as a learning disability.

•More than 10 percent of public-school students may be in need of special education. About half of these students have some type of learning disability.

•Learning disabilities are more common in boys than girls.

•Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD), a series of symptoms that include disturbances in

ABCs for Parents

By Jane Coosby

movement, cognition, communication and social competence represents the most common developmental problem in school children.

•Fifty to 70 percent of children with ADD who are diagnosed between 6 and 12 years of age continue to manifest symptoms throughout adolescence.

Children with learning disabilities have a problem with the way the brain handles information. This interferes with the normal learning process and creates a need for special teaching methods. Children do not outgrow their learning disabilities and can develop emotional problems due to school failure if they don't get adequate help.

Early detection is the key to handling learning disabilities, says Dr. Julian Haber, a member of the AAP's committee on children with disabilities.

Frequently potential school problems may start long before the beginning of school, Haber says.

Your child's pediatrician should be screening the child for such learning problems during baby checkups. Early identification of potential problems can assist parents in finding appropriate services to overcome or mitigate the effects of any disability.

Although the causes of learning disabilities are not known, there are certain risk factors to consider. Children with a family history of learning disabilities, low birth weight, stress before or after birth, treatment for cancer or leukemia, infections of the central nervous system or severe head injuries, run a higher risk of having a learning disability, according to the AAP.

The preschool warning signs of potential learning disabilities are delays in language development, trouble with speech or coordination, and a short attention span.

If you suspect your preschool child has a problem, consult the pediatrician. Children develop at different rates and in different ways. A developmental lag in one area does not necessarily mean there is a learning disability.

If your child already is in school and has been identified as having a learning disability, try to maintain realistic expectations for him. Don't expect him to accomplish tasks beyond his abilities.

It is important to find out what areas a learning disabled child can do well in and then work to emphasize his strengths. Recognize your child's academic achievements and compliment his work.

Parents of a learning disabled child are that child's most important advocate. They know their child better than any professional and must provide valuable input to the people working with their child.

Fertility drugs are good and bad

By Robert C. Park, M.D., President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

The development and birth of a baby is a wonderful thing. Part of the wonder is that a woman is able to conceive at all, given all of nature's requirements. There are at least six basic physical conditions that must be met for a couple to conceive a child, and if there is a complicated process, infertility can result.

•The man must produce a certain number of normal live sperm.

•His sperm must have an open pathway to pass from the testes out through the penis.

•He must be able to ejaculate the sperm into the vagina.

•His sperm must then travel up through the cervix, the uterus, and into the fallopian tubes.

The woman's ovaries must produce a healthy egg (ovulation) and release it into the tubes, where it must be fertilized by the sperm within 12 to 36 hours.

Once fertilized, the egg must migrate into the uterus, where it attaches itself in the rich lining of the womb, which nourishes it. The woman is now pregnant.

About 40 percent of the time, infertility is caused by a problem with the woman's reproductive system. Some women are infertile because they do not ovulate. For these women, "fertility drugs" can be given that will help the release of the egg. Most of the time, when these drugs are used, ovulation will occur within three months. Fertility drugs must be used with caution, though. Some of them can cause more than one egg to be released and fertilized, causing multiple births.

If ovulation does not occur after fertility drugs are taken, the doctor may increase the dosage. If the woman still releases no egg, then a drug known as human menopausal gonadotropin (hMG) may be recommended. Although it is more expensive and difficult to administer, the rate of pregnancy after using hMG is between 50 and 70 percent. The chance of twins, though, is two and a half times as likely with hMG.

If a couple suspects they have an infertility problem, they should see their doctor.

Frequent, thorough hand washing recommended

By Bernard S. Turnock, M.D., director, Illinois Department of Public Health

The most prevalent intestinal illnesses occurring in day-care centers are shigellosis, giardiasis and hepatitis A.

Shigellosis is a bacterial infection involving the large intestine. It can result in severe diarrhea, fever, nausea and sometimes vomiting and cramps.

It is not fatal, but can be quite severe in young children. And children are especially susceptible to person-to-person transmission of shigellosis, particularly those who are still in diapers.

Giardiasis, a parasite infection, may cause a variety of symptoms, such as chronic diarrhea, abdominal cramps, bloating, fatigue and weight loss.

Hepatitis A, a virus infection, is transmitted when children have hand contact with the feces of an infected person, and then place their hands or fingers into their mouths before the hands are thoroughly washed.

In the same way, children can contaminate food, dishes, eating utensils, toys or other objects that may find their way to children's mouths. Hepatitis A is usually a mild illness in small children. In fact, they may have no symptoms at all.

But, if the virus is transmitted to adults or older children, it can be serious.

Symptoms of Hepatitis A include fever, loss of appetite, nausea and abdominal discomfort, followed within a few days by jaundice.

The most effective measure in preventing the spread of these illnesses is frequent and thorough hand-washing. Parents and day-care-center personnel should wash their hands thoroughly after using the bathroom, changing a diaper or helping a toddler in the bathroom.

Hands should also be washed before handling food, toys or any item that might be placed in another's mouth.

Because children cannot be relied on to be conscientious about hygiene, parents and caretakers should teach children proper hand-washing methods, watch them carefully and assist them with washing their hands.

Improvements to air bags mean more reliability

By Peter Bohr

I always have regarded air bags, those safety devices that inflate during a collision, as the automobile industry's answer to the whoopee cushion. That is, they are a bad joke.

The battle over air bags has kept lawmakers running for cover for nearly 20 years. Proponents, primarily the insurance industry, argue that Americans are too lazy to fasten their seat belts (unfortunately true), so the Feds should require automakers to install air bags to save lives. Opponents, primarily auto company executives and a few of us social deviants who actually use our seat belts, countered with a list of objections.

First, there was cost; driver-side-only air bags currently run between $500 and $1,000, many times the cost of a whole car full of seat belts. Second, there was the possibility of accidental discharge. Would running over a New York City-style pothole set the bag off, causing the driver to steer into the nearest light pole? Third, what happens to an air bag in a car 10 or 15 years down the road? It's hard enough to keep the power windows working in an old clunker; how could you be sure an air-bag system would still function?

Well now the proponents of air bags seem to be the victors. Bowing to the edicts of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Acura, BMW, Ford, General Motors, Mercedes, Porsche, Saab and Volvo are offering air bags in some models. Chrysler announced it will install air bags as standard equipment on six 1989 models and all domestic cars by 1990.

After a recent conversation with Ford spokesman Bill Peacock, I feel more disposed to being a gracious loser, however. Through the magic of technology and governmental arm-twisting, the automakers apparently have resolved most of the air bag's worrisome uncertainties.

"An air-bag system must be foolproof for the life of the car," said Peacock. "Cigar box-sized microprocessors are now available that perform a self-diagnosis of the system. Every time you turn on the ignition, a little light on the instrument panel tells you if the system is working properly. As long as that warning light never comes on to indicate a malfunction, the system will never require any maintenance."

"We were also concerned about inadvertent jolts setting off the bag. Sensors at the front of the car detect deceleration. We've added a back-up sensor that must confirm the information sent by the other sensors before the bag inflates. The bag is set to go off when the car is subjected to a force equivalent to hitting a fixed barrier at 12.5 mph. So if you bump a car while parallel parking, the bag won't go off."

Peacock continued: "We've sold 33,000 Tempo and Topaz models with air bags since 1985, and together they're approaching the half-billion mile mark. There hasn't been a single inadvertent deployment, and there hasn't been a single instance when an air bag hasn't worked when it should have."

OK, so the system is reliable and probably durable. Still I wondered, why would I want an expensive air bag in my car if I always use my seat belt? "Ordinary three-point, combination lap-and-shoulder belts found in passenger cars aren't going to be as effective as the six-point belts found in a NASCAR racer," said Peacock. "A lot depends on how the seat belt is worn, and on an individual's tolerance. A frail older lady won't have the same crash tolerance as a football player. An air bag provides extra protection, especially in high-speed collisions."

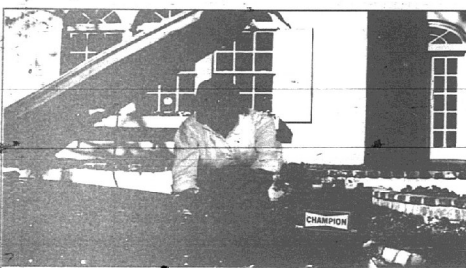

As for cost, prices should be declining in the near future. English automaker Jaguar is reported to be working on a system that can be produced for $40 a unit.

Perhaps the main problem with air bags is the false security they may give some people, who figure they won't need to use seat belts any longer. As Peacock emphasized, air bags are not substitutes for seat belts. Air bags only work in frontal collisions, which account for just 50 percent of car accidents.

I guess air bags aren't so silly after all.

Tender care keeps battery charged up

Every fall, as the temperatures drop, it's wise to check the car battery to be sure it's in shape for winter driving conditions.

A small investment in time now will pay back in large measure later, when you have the confidence of knowing your car will start, even on the coldest morning.

First, clean the battery. Check for any dirt or corrosion on top, or around the terminals and cables. Also check for broken or loose terminal posts or broken and cracked containers and covers.

Keep the terminals and connections clean and tight. Use a water-resistant grease or lubricant such as petroleum jelly to seal out moisture on connections. If the battery isn't maintenance-free, it isn't distilled water. Be sure not to overfill—the water level should be above the plates and below the bottom of the vent.

If the battery needs charging, follow these tips:

• Recharge in a warm room (60 to 80 degrees F). You may need to take the battery inside to get the temperature up.

• If the battery has drained slowly, such as from leaving the headlights on, recharge it slowly, at a rate of about 6 to 10 amps for eight to 10 hours.

• If the battery was discharged rapidly, such as from repeated attempts to start the engine, recharge at a faster rate, about 40 amps for one to two hours (for a 6-volt battery) or 70 amps for one to two hours (for a 12-volt battery). A note of caution on the fast charge: Be sure the temperature does not go above 125 degrees F.

• Finally, always wear safety glasses when working around automotive batteries.

Here are a few operating tips for winter:

Start your engine before you turn on any electrical devices such as lights, radio and wipers. These draw the battery faster in colder weather.

Avoid excessive cranking of the engine. A good rule of thumb is to crank (turn the key in the ignition) for a maximum of 15 seconds and then let the starter rest for two minutes before you try again.

Saving lives is goal

Proper car maintenance not only prolongs the life of the car but may save the lives of those riding inside.

Saving lives is one of the goals of National Car Care Month, a campaign held each October.

"Over 5 percent of highway fatalities could have been avoided through proper vehicle maintenance," said Arthur Nellen, president, Car Care Council, coordinator of the event.

Undermaintained cars not only cause traffic accidents, but according to the American Lung Association, transportation sources account for 10 percent of the carbon monoxide, one third of the hydrocarbons and almost 50 percent of the nitrogen oxide in the nation's air.

The noxious gases emitted by untuned autos are harmful to everyone, but they particularly affect children, the elderly, pregnant women and people with heart disease and serious lung diseases such as emphysema, chronic bronchitis and asthma. Some of the hydrocarbons also are known to cause cancer.

"A neglected car uses as much as 18 percent more gasoline than a properly maintained vehicle. The motorist who thinks he's being penny-wise by putting off maintenance is being pound-foolish with the extra gas he uses and the higher repair bills that will result," Nellen said.

IDOT reissues motorists car pool plea

By Gary King

The Illinois Department of Transportation is reissuing its plea to motorists who commute to work in St. Louis: Form car pools, please!

IDOT Assistant District Engineer Fred Bartelsmeyer said the use of HOVs (high occupancy vehicles) could save motorists up to 15 minutes in travel time daily.

"The HOV Lane on the Eads Bridge requires three or more passengers in a car," Bartelsmeyer said. "That lane is under-used, and could save motorists a substantial amount of travel time on a daily basis."

Bartelsmeyer said HOVs would also ease the traffic flow into St. Louis while the Martin Luther King Bridge remains closed for structural repairs and resurfacing.

"The biggest problem at this time is that if there are any cars that suffer extensive breakdowns on the highways feeding into and out of St. Louis during the peak traffic periods of the day, they cause extensive traffic delays," Bartelsmeyer said. "When there are no problems or breakdowns, everything operates fine."

The King Bridge is scheduled to reopen June 15, 1989.

21 non-profit groups receive fuel assistance grants

The Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources (ENR) Consumer Assistance Section has announced that $337,770 in Exxon Overcharge Funds has been awarded to 21 non-profit groups to promote energy programs for low-income residents.

Included is the Lessee Bates Davis Neighborhood House, 1200 N. 13th St., East St. Louis, which received $25,000.

William Krieb is the director. The grants will allow community groups to help low-income individuals and families participate in programs that control both utility costs and energy consumption.

"Grantees, selected from 43 proposals, are distributed statewide," ENR Director Karen Witter said.

"Our goal with these promotion grants is to increase participation of eligible citizens in programs which assist low income households with utility costs."

The funds will be used to promote three low-income programs:

• Illinois Home Energy Assistance Program (IHEAP), which helps households pay utility costs.

• Illinois Weatherization Assistance Program (IWAP), which benefits homeowners and renters by offering free weatherization improvements.

• Illinois Residential Affordable Payment Plan (IRAPP), which caps low-income residents' winter utility bills at 12 percent of their income.

Promotional efforts are being carried out by ENR in cooperation with the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs (DCCA). ENR will work with grantees and other community groups to advertise the programs.

Persons may contact DCCA at 1-800-252-8643 for more information on IHEAP and the weatherization program.

To learn more about IRAPP, they may call ENR at 1-800-252-8955.

27 liquor licensees challenged

Twenty-seven downstate businesses, several in the Central East, are in immediate danger of losing their state liquor licenses because they refuse to pay delinquent state sales taxes.

The Illinois Liquor Control Commission told the 27 license holders in regular hearings last week that it intends to revoke their licenses if all taxes are not paid and all returns are not filed within a 25-day appeal period.

"This is a last-ditch effort to collect what is usually a long-overdue tax bill," said Department of Revenue Director Roger D. Sweet.

"We want to protect the state's taxpayers. We must protect business people from unfair competition from those who pocket state dollars."

Sweet said the state is increasing its reliance on the revocation program. "It works well. It's cost-effective. Word is getting out that the Department of Revenue and the Liquor Control Commission are working together."

"Businesses are paying up before their cases go before the commission. In most other cases, those who do receive a final notice pay up within the 25-day appeal period."

"These taxes have been paid by licensees at the time of purchase. The businesses have the overdue tax dollars in their pockets. Unfortunately, some of them have to be firm before a business will return those tax dollars to the state."

When a state liquor license is revoked, the former license holder cannot legally sell liquor in Illinois, and will not be given a new liquor license until all overdue taxes are paid. Unless the Liquor Commission grants an exception, no other person can have a liquor license for that address for one year.

The liquor license holders who are facing revocation include: Winners, 501 Collinsville Road, Collinsville; Scott Plumber, Scott and Kathy's, 312 E. Main St., Collinsville; Edgebrook Package Liquors Inc., 8407 State St., East St. Louis; Robert C. Easter, Ritz Package Liquor, 328 N. 18th St., East St. Louis; and Ermadean Delaney, Ermadean's Place, 1413 Second St., Madison.

Fair housing bill signed into law

Housing Secretary Samuel R. Pierce Jr. has praised the Fair Housing Amendments Act of 1988, which strengthens Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968.

"Although Congress passed the Fair Housing Act in 1968, it provided no federal enforcement mechanism to provide relief to victims of discrimination. Now, with President Reagan signing this historic legislation, all Americans — regardless of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, and including for the first time, families with children and the disabled — will be protected from this repugnant form of discrimination."

"We as a nation finally say, enough is enough, discrimination in housing cannot and will not be tolerated," Pierce said.

"I am deeply grateful to have worked for over seven years with the vice president, many fine members of Congress, the civil rights community, and the real estate industry to achieve this long-delayed dream."

Major provisions of the Fair Housing Amendments Act of 1988:

• Protects disabled individuals and families with children from discrimination in the sale, rental or financing of housing.

• Authorizes the secretary to commence investigations on his own.

• Authorizes the federal government to commence enforcement actions on behalf of individuals.

• Authorizes fines of up to $10,000 for a first offense, up to $25,000 for a second offense, and up to $50,000 for a third. If an ongoing pattern of discriminatory behavior is discovered, a fine up to $100,000 can be levied.

Scuba class being formed

The Tri-City Area YMCA is offering a self-contained underwater breathing apparatus (scuba) class, which will begin Saturday, Oct. 29, from 2 to 6 p.m.

The class, when successfully completed, provides PADI certification.

Professional, certified instructors will teach the class, which includes two hours of lecture and two hours of underwater instruction each week.

The class is limited to 10 students, and registration is being taken now on a first-come, first-served basis at YMCA, 2001 Edison Ave.

Further information can be obtained by calling the Y at 777-7200. The YMCA is a Tri-Cities Area United Way member agency.

norton on Saturday that the truck might have been wet, perhaps from being outside. It rained Saturday night.

But a spokesman for the company, which is conducting an investigation, cast doubt on the supposition. Human Resources Director Vic Stirmann said, "We feel sure that the forklift never got outside."

Stirmann said the molten metal was thrown a distance of slightly more than 1 foot from the melting pot. Venice Fire Chief Willie Dumas said the metal was thrown at least 25 feet up a wall, setting fire to the wall and the forklift, said Dumas said the blaze took about 45 minutes to extinguish.

On Monday, officials from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration visited the plant, which employs about 450 workers. No comment was available from the company.

Formerly Conalco, SCI makes cast-rolled and extruded magnesium and aluminum for military and commercial use.

Stirmann, who has worked at SCI for 16 years, said James' death was the only fatality he could recall at the company.

Injured were Lavon Taylor, 40, Granite City; Michael Murray, 21, Fairmont City; Thomas Renken, 58, Collinsville; and Greg Trunk, 42, Edwardsville. All four were taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center. Murray and Taylor have been released, and Renken and Trunk are in critical condition. Monday with third degree burns over 7 percent of his body.

James is survived by his wife, Siltha, two sons and his mother, Johnnie. Two sisters and two brothers. An obituary appears elsewhere in this issue.

James was the second man killed in two days in an industrial accident in the Quad Cities. On Friday morning, Alan Little, 55, was run over and killed by a slag truck at the Blue Funnel Division of Granite City Steel.

This summer, a man was crushed to death between a crane and a railroad car at O'Dell's Iron and Metal Co., 100 St. Louis, Madison.

good and well I can't afford it. I'm not for taxes, per se, but I'm willing to go along with people and help develop this area immensely." Still on the subject of water, resident Jack Mitchell approached the board seeking a solution to a water problem on his property.

Mitchell built a house on Central Lane last spring and a culvert was added to the end of his driveway by the township.

"The problem is there's water coming onto my property that is not draining toward the lake or the ditch," Mitchell said.

His drain ends 22 feet from a running ditch, causing a backlog of water to develop on his lawn. "I'm not expecting anybody to jump up on this now," he said, but when the spring rain comes I want the water to go somewhere other than in my yard.

The board agreed to approach highway commissioner Lee Adams with the matter.

Drought hurts marijuana crop

By Theodore M. Doolittle
States News Service

WASHINGTON — In the middle of the Illinois harvest season, experts are split on whether the drought will hurt the state's third leading cash crop, marijuana.

The drought has had an adverse effect on the marijuana crop this year, said state police Lt. Jerry Johnson, coordinator of eradication Cash Crop, the Illinois state police eradication program.

Estimates put the value of last year's marijuana crop in Illinois at $68 million.

Johnson said reports of cultivated marijuana in the state are down dramatically from last year. State police records from 1987 show that about 39,000 domesticated marijuana plants had been detected and destroyed in Illinois by the end of October.

By the end of this September, only about 7,000 cultivated plants had been destroyed, according to Johnson. He expected this year's final tally to be nowhere near the 1987 figure.

Johnson attributed a big portion of the drop to the difficulties of cultivating marijuana in a drought. "Many growers have just given up the crop and walked away. In most instances it was so dry out, it was too much of a hassle to continue trying to cultivate it, and with everything else dry and brown, the green pot increased their risk of capture."

But a Drug Enforcement Administration official said he was not as hopeful as Johnson that the drought has cut into the state's marijuana production.

Franz Hirzy, a spokesman for the Chicago division of the DEA, said, "Marijuana is a very hardy growth plant. I can't say what kind of impact drought had, but I would suggest the cultivated stuff would not be that affected by the drought."

An edition of High Times, a monthly marijuana magazine, agreed. Responses to the magazine's harvest survey, he said, indicate that the drought "did not seem as if it had a tremendous bad effect. It just made people work a little harder—toward the end of the crop or something."

But Ed Rosenthal, the magazine's circulation editor, predicted an adverse impact from the drought. However, the amount of marijuana produced in Illinois and other midwestern states will be greater, this year because of the increasing number of people growing the drug.

"There will be not as much yield as usual, but the loss will be around 10 to 15 percent, as opposed to other types of farmers with losses of 40 percent or more," he said.

According to NORML, even this volume is not very high. In 1987, Illinois was outproduced by 23 states in terms of estimated marijuana harvest value. NORML estimates that 13 percent of 1987 Illinois crop, and 16 percent of the national crop, was seized and destroyed.

Church

Central Baptist pastor marks a decade of work

The Rev. Wayne Musatics celebrated his 10th anniversary as pastor of Central Baptist Church, 3940 Illinois 111.

The congregation threw a surprise day of celebration for the couple. Events included a dinner at the church.

During the evening service, Musatics and his wife were presented with a $1,000 gift. They were also presented with an album of letters and notes of appreciation.

When Musatics, the second pastor in the church's 16-year history, came to Central Baptist, the home of the congregation was the building that now houses the offices of Pontoon Beach Village. The new two-story building at 3940 Illinois 111 was built to house the congregation and a parsonage was purchased.

Ten years ago the highest attendance at the church was 153; the high attendance mark is now 604.

The church has operated Central Baptist School for 15 years. The congregation recently welcomed Mark and Shari Baggett. He is the new youth director, and she is a kindergarten and primary school teacher.

Rev. and Mrs. Musatic

Clubs

Club studies prickly subject

"Diversity of the Cactus Family" was the topic of the Cloverview Garden Club presented by Mrs. Charles Gandorla at the club's October meeting.

Gandorla stated that cacti originated in the Americas, probably in Mexico, but now range from British Columbia to the tip of South America.

Cacti exist in an environment of intense sunlight, low humidity, hot dry winds, scanty rainfall and extreme fluctuations between day and night temperatures. Survival under these conditions meant resolving two problems: how to handle excessive heat and how to avoid drying up. Adaptation required the ability to make continual adjustments to prevent internal temperatures from becoming lethal while losing as little water as possible. Watering should be once a week in summer every two weeks in winter.

Gandorla presented an album of pictures taken of the flower beds in her yard, displaying numerous varieties of cactus plants bearing showy flowers.

The "show and tell" exhibit was an Easter lily cactus (echinopsis sylvestrii). It is a night bloomer and usually lasts with the bloom until the next afternoon.

She said the plant has off shoots, which should be allowed to grow about three-fourths inch in diameter, before being removed and allowed to dry about one week, then potted in sand for two to three weeks to allow roots to form before repotting in regular cactus soil.

Mrs. Kenneth Brokaw brought a succulent plant that would be suitable for a hanging basket.

Preceding the meeting, Mrs. Donald Tabor served a dessert luncheon in her Granite City home to Brokaw, Mrs. Von DeCruse, Mrs. Clarence Etheridge, Gandorla, Mrs. B.C. O'Neill, Louise Sedack and Mrs. Albert Taylor.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Ray Williamson, Mrs. B.C. O'Neill, vice president, conducted the business meeting. Roll call was answered by naming poisonous plants.

Announcements of coming events included a President's Council Day to be held in Mount Olive, with the Green Oaks garden club hosting.

The program was scheduled to include Alan Johnson, landscape architect with the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Dozens of churches assemble

St. John United Church of Christ in Granite City hosted the Illinois South Conference annual meeting in late September.

The theme of the conference was "One in Christ — One in Mission."

Four hundred delegates from 95 United Church of Christ churches in the Southern Illinois region were in attendance.

A shrimp boil was led by the Rev. David Stephens, director of Back Bay Mission, Eliot, Miss.

At a mission fest, opportunity was given to learn about mission agencies supported by the United Church of Christ.

During a worship service of the conference, a combined choir from St. John UCC and St. Peter UCC of Granite City sang.

Next was a celebration of homes affiliated with the conference — Hitz Memorial Home, New Athens Home for the Aged, and Hoytson Children's Home.

Resolutions were adopted on continuing hunger and food crises in this region and the world; extremist groups; farm crises; and AIDS crises.

Halloween safety tips offered

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission offers safety tips for parents and guardians of children who plan to trick-or-treat this Halloween.

• Look for costumes, masks, hoods and wigs labeled "Flame Resistant." Although this does not mean these items won't catch fire, such labeling indicates that they will resist burning and should extinguish quickly once removed from the ignition source.

• Flimsy materials and outfits with big, baggy sleeves or billowing skirts should be avoided to minimize the risk of contact with candles or other sources of ignition.

• Make or buy costumes light and bright enough to be clearly visible to motorists. For greater visibility in dusk or darkness, costumes can be decorated or trimmed with reflective tape which will glow in the beam of a car's headlights.

• Bags or sacks also should be light colored or decorated with reflective tape. Reflective tape is usually available in hardware, bicycle, and sporting goods stores. Children also should carry flashlights to see and be seen more easily.

• Costumes should be short enough to prevent children from tripping and falling. Children should wear well-fitting sturdy shoes. Mother's high heels are not a good idea for safe walking.

• Hats and scarfs should be tied securely to prevent them from slipping over children's eyes.

• Apply a natural mask of cosmetics rather than have a child wear a mask that might restrict breathing or obscure vision. If a mask is used, make sure it fits securely and has eyeholes large enough to allow full vision.

• Swords, knives and similar costume accessories should be of soft or flexible material.

• Warn children not to eat any of their treats before they get home. Examine all treats carefully for evidence of tampering before allowing children to eat them.

• Smaller children should always be accompanied by an older responsible child or an adult. All children should use the sidewalk rather than the street, and they should walk not run from house to house. Children should be cautioned against running out from between parked cars or across lawns and yards where ornaments, furniture, or clotheslines present dangers.

• Children should go only to homes where residents have outside lights on as a sign of welcome. Children should not enter homes or apartments unless they are accompanied by an adult.

• Those receiving trick-or-treaters should remove anything that could be an obstacle from steps, lawns, and porches. Candelit jack-o'-lanterns should be kept away from curtains, decorations, or other furnishings that could be ignited.

Alzheimer's care workshop set

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville is offering a workshop on Wednesday, Nov. 2, for caregivers working with Alzheimer's patients in institutional settings.

Sponsored by the Gerontology Program at SIUE and the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association, the workshop will increase knowledge and provide hands-on strategies to those individuals who provide direct and daily care for patients with Alzheimer's Disease.

The seminar is scheduled in the Hickory-Hackberry-Oak-Redbud Rooms in the University Center from 8:30 a.m. until 3:45 p.m.

The lecture/discussion workshop will use several educational methods, including audience discussion and participation, handouts, and experimental exercises.

Participants must pre-register either by calling the Gerontology Office or by sending in a registration form. Registration is $20 and includes lunch. For a registration form or information, contact Anthony Traxler, SIUE Gerontology Program, at 692-3454.

ESL site may be cited for cleanup

Ten additional locations have been formally added to a list of sites identified for investigation and possible cleanup under Gov. James Thompson's "Clean Illinois" program.

The additional locations were published in October in the Illinois Register amending the State Remedial Action Priorities List (SRAPL).

The second update of the SRAPL names 29 locations identified by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) as suspected of polluting the environment with hazardous substances.

New sites named to the SRAPL include the Lanson Chemical Division, East St. Louis.

The state's hazardous waste cleanup program initiative began in 1984 under the three-year, $20 million Clean Illinois program.

"Clean Illinois" appropriations have provided additional funds to further these cleanup actions.

In naming the additional sites IEPA Director Bernard P. Kilian cautioned that funds may not be available to cover the anticipated cost of investigation and cleanup work at new sites.

"Without sufficient funding we will not be able to maintain the cleanup schedule established under Clean Illinois four years ago. Until funding approaches are found and implemented, the agency may not be able to start or finish cleanup projects at orphan SRAPL sites or where private party cleanups fail," said Kilian.

The Illinois Hazardous Substances Pollution Control Plan requires the IEPA annually revise and publish the SRAPL.

Gaffner establishes club for donations under $200

COLLINSVILLE — Congressional candidate for the 21st District Robert H. Gaffner said he has established a $199.99 Club at the request of numerous supporters who are fearful of retribution should their name appear on a Federal Election Commission (FEC) report.

"Anyone who donates $200 or less is not reported to the FEC according to federal law and the donor can then remain anonymous."

"It is unfortunate that in this day and age some people have fear if they support a particular candidate or party. This is not the way a democracy is supposed to operate," Gaffner said.

Donations for the Gaffner $199.99 Club are to be sent to the Gaffner Campaign Office, 300 E. Main St., Collinsville, Ill. 62234 and checks in the amount of $199.99 or less to "Gaffner for Congress Committee '88."

"Establishing this special club for special donors will allow all individuals who want to participate in our campaign an opportunity to actively impact on the political future of the 21st Congressional District," Gaffner said.

Gaffner is a candidate in the Nov. 8 general election.

THE FUTURE—FOR $6 PER YEAR LET'S TAKE IT!

Approval of the Metro-East Sanitary District Tax Rate Question on November 8 will increase regional taxes by $1,200,000 per year for the next five years.

That's $6 per year for each of the region's 200,000 residents. What do we get for that small commitment?

1. Federal grants totalling $23,250,000 — to repair our flood protection system and control groundwater.
2. Hundreds of jobs to be generated by a $31,000,000 public works project of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.
3. Protection of our homes and businesses and schools and communities from the threat of destructive river flooding.
4. A deep-well and pumping system to lower the water table to keep water from breaking our sewer lines and flooding our basements every spring.
5. Rehabilitation of the canals and drainage ditches of our flood plain region, to control the flow of surface water.
6. Prevent us from losing equity in our homes, which would result from denial of flood insurance, an essential in any mortgage transaction in a flood plain.
7. Renew the basic infrastructural element most vital for bringing new businesses and industries for our area ... the only way to have a prosperous economic future.

MASSIVE FEDERAL FUNDING ... PROTECTION FOR OUR HOMES ... JOBS NOW AND IN THE FUTURE ... SAFEGUARDING THE EQUITY IN OUR PROPERTIES!

That's a great return on a $6 investment.

Sigourney Weaver riveting as 'gorilla-woman' Fossey

By Frank Hunter
Staff affiliate

Assuming the moviegoing public ranks salvaging the simians of Africa right up there with sex, drugs and car chases, Sigourney Weaver's riveting new film "Gorillas in the Mist" (4½ stars) will rattle box office cages with the sound of coin.

Weaver could garner an Oscar nomination for her stunning incarnation of the late Dian Fossey, the tough-minded American naturalist who risked everything to protect the endangered gorillas of Rwanda, Africa.

At age 33, Fossey was mysteriously slain at her Karisoke Research Station in December 1985. For nearly 20 years she had battled those opposing her struggle against the Batway jungle pygmies who slaughtered the adult apes, cut off their heads and hands and sold them as trophies. The poachers also did brisk business selling gorilla offspring to zoos for big bucks.

An informative, gripping and often depressing drama directed by Michael Apted from Anna Hamilton Phelan's screenplay, "Gorillas in the Mist" is based on Fossey's 1983 autobiography. It focuses on her fight to establish the Karisoke sanctuary in a rain forest atop a 12,000-foot mountain, where gorillas now may frolic in reasonable comfort and safety.

Although Fossey's initial encounters with the great apes were perilous, she was undaunted by the animals and the film wastes no time describing the depth of her feeling for the plight of the endangered species.

It also suggests that people can mingle socially with gorillas if they don't appear intimidating or try to look the apes in the eye during a confrontation, characteristics particular to a couple of managing editors I have known.

As played by Weaver, Fossey was quick-tempered and rash in her conservation efforts. She was often offensive to the natives, Rwanda park and government bureaucrats, and anyone else threatening to derail her long-range project.

While her killer never was apprehended, and her research assistant was convicted in absentia, it generally is believed that poachers invaded Fossey's modest jungle hut and killed her with a machete.

Weaver offers a compelling portrait of the complex and obsessive physical therapist-turned naturalist. Fossey considered the gorillas "her family" and declared a private war on all who opposed her conservation efforts, especially after someone slaughtered her favorite gorilla, Digit.

There is a memorable performance by John Omirah Miluwi as Sembagare, Fossey's devoted tracker-friend and guide, and John Seale's cinematography is plainly spectacular.

Apparently there were some men in Fossey's life who wanted to marry her but ultimately called off the nuptials, perhaps alarmed at the long-term prospect of mountain life among the apes.

Nevertheless, the film finds Fossey taking a lover in Nation of Geographic photographer Bob Campbell, a married man (charmingly played by Bryan Brown) who arrives unannounced at her compound to record her activities. There is an impression, however, that this involvement comes straight from the writing factory, fiction aimed at people who might tire of looking at a mob of apes.

Despite minor flaws, "Gorillas in the Mist" is a unique and incandescent biography.

Rated PG-13 (violence, language). Running time: 129 minutes.

Parker's self-destruction seen in Eastwood's 'Bird'

By Frank Hunter
Staff affiliate

Samuel Butler described genius as "a supreme capacity for getting its possessors into trouble of all kinds." And few men in the music world screwed up their lives more than Charlie Parker, the brilliant and mercurial Kansas City-born jazz saxophonist known as "Bird" (1924-1955).

Parker chased women, married four of them, chain-smoked Camel cigarettes, consumed vast quantities of food, picked his liver with alcohol and became a copious dope eater.

Few men put so much effort into acquiring a hangover from booze and drugs as Parker, and when he died at age 34 in 1955 the coroner's report listed his age as 65.

Parker is the subject of "Bird," actor-director Clint Eastwood's sad, beautifully made impressionistic memoir crammed with long stretches devoted to Parker's music played in smoky jazz clubs of the 1940s and '50s.

Forest Whitaker, in a striking incarnation of the bulky Bird, plays a man born to self-destruct despite a buoyant personality and gift for friendship flecked with dark moods of despair.

Parker suffered wild mood swings more difficult to control than his passion for the things that contributed to them.

"Bird" presents Parker as a man ultimately snuffed out by a life-is-for-living creed while focusing on his professional life during the big band era when Parker was infuriating his agent by missing important gigs.

As the film careers back and forth in time, Joel Oliansky's script introduces Parker's fourth wife, Chan, indulged daughter of a Jewish milk club owner. Chan Parker's unpublished biography, "Life in E-Flat," forms the basis of Oliansky's script, with Diane Venora in fine form as Chan Parker, a woman unable to resist marrying the jazz man. She admits, "I never wanted to make men feel perfect—I was born to drive them crazy."

Apart from one boyhood sequence, the film covers Parker's last 10 years as he was slowly killing himself.

Colorful characters include Dizzy Gillespie (Sam Wright), the trumpet player who helped establish the "bebop" style with Parker and tried to save him from himself.

And Michael Zelniker is Red Rodney, the white trumpet man passed off as "Albino Red" during a tour with Parker through the segregated Deep South.

Film's Jesus a sap, not a savior

By Harry Hamm
Staff affiliate

If Martin Scorsese's film "The Last Temptation of Christ" (2 stars) was as good as its promotion and marketing plan, it might be a motion picture I could recommend.

Willem Dafoe joins the likes of H.B. Warner, Max Von Sydow, John Drew Barrymore, Ted Neeley and Donald Sutherland in Scorsese's attempt to show the life of Jesus Christ on screen. Visually, Dafoe is successful playing Jesus; his work is sincere and, at times, remarkable.

But Paul Schrader's screenplay, based on the novel by Nikos Kazantzakis, fails in its attempt to examine the human side of Jesus. Instead of dramatizing the subject, director Scorsese has traumatized it by the force of an almost obsessive concentration on a Jesus who is mentally incompetent.

Day to day, Jesus is shown to be a bona fide neurotic, beset by anxieties, compulsions and the obsession that he is totally unable to make correct decisions or understand his own destiny. Scorsese allows this Jesus to show some decisiveness now and then. But overall, the Jesus depicted in "The Last Temptation of Christ" is a sap, not a savior.

Another mistake is the sexually explicit nature of some scenes featuring Barbara Hershey as Mary Magdalene. Both in a segment of the "dream sequence" of the crucifixion (the famous "temptation" in the title) and early in the film when the character of Magdalene first is introduced, Scorsese allows her to be shown in a way that will offend many viewers. It is an inexcusable and indicative, perhaps, of Scorsese's desire to stir the pot of controversy.

There is a lot of historical accuracy in "The Last Temptation of Christ" in set design and costuming, although the film's overall tone is dark and its trapping sparse. The crucifixion scene is powerful, but most of the rest of the film is not. The special effects are sometimes laughable, especially the scenes that depict the devil as something like a talking Bunsen burner.

The supporting cast of the film includes Harvey Keitel, Andre Gregory, David Bowie and Harry Dean Stanton.

"The Last Temptation of Christ" succeeds at being a cinematic curiosity more than it does a worthwhile, artistic and meaningful film.

Rated R for nudity and violence. Running time: 160 minutes.

WILLEM DAFOE STARS as Jesus in 'The Last Temptation of Christ.'

Rue McClanahan, glad 'Golden Girl'

By Harry Hamm
Staff affiliate

Actress Rue McClanahan has five dogs, two cats, an old home she's rehabbing on 3 acres in Los Angeles, one Enotic, a starring role in a very successful comedy series, plenty of work in television commercials and a list of stage, television and motion picture credits that would warm any agent's any agent's heart.

But most of all, Rue has Blanche, the character she portrays on the hit television series "The Golden Girls."

"I'm playing a man-crazy, self-centered widow, and I'm having a lot of fun doing it," McClanahan said. "I went in to see the director of the pilot and he sat and watched me for a few minutes and asked if I would mind doing something very unorthodox," McClanahan recalls. "He wanted me to go down the hall and just look at the role of Blanche for a few minutes."

"Next time we went in they announced to us that they decided to switch the roles and both Betty and I were delighted because it gave us an opportunity to be more versatile from what we'd been doing before."

"The Golden Girls" also gave McClanahan a chance to bring an old friend into the series. "I'd been working for five or six years to get Bea (Arthur) to do a series with me," McClanahan said. "She was kind of retired to raise her kids and cook and go baroque and she had done one or two pilots that hadn't worked out and she was kind of disappointed."

Although McClanahan's Blanche is considered saucy and a flirt, she feels there is a very therapeutic side to her character's effect on the audience.

"I think it's been good for me as it has been for a lot of women over 50 who feel like it has allowed them to break out and be the person they felt they were inside but didn't feel society would sanction," said McClanahan, 59. "Now, I don't mean promiscuous. I mean fun-loving and younger and feeling younger than they thought they were supposed to feel."

McClanahan, who was born in Headtown, Okla., has ties to St. Louis through her affiliation as an Advisory Board member of the Reeltime Purina Co.'s Pets for People effort. McClanahan joins other such luminaries as Walter Cronkite, Red Skelton, Bob Hope, Lucille Ball, Barbara Bush (wife of Vice President George Bush) and others in the program whose goal is to encourage pairing homeless animals with lonely senior citizens.

"I went to a meeting we had with all the Purina executives out there on the West Coast and they showed some of the most moving photographs you've ever seen of people sitting in chairs holding a cat or a puppy or a dog with the brightest, beaming smiles on their faces, just hugging these animals up against them," McClanahan said. "The animals looked rather happy too. 'They've already found out that it (adopting pets) lowers blood pressure, reduces stress, raises spirits and gets people out exercising. I think it prolongs life too.'"

McClanahan's performing career has brought her in contact with many of the best actors and actresses in the business, but when she looks back, she says one individual stands out—the star of 1971's sleeper movie classic, "They Might Be Giants," in which she appeared. "George C. Scott was the most fascinating person I've ever worked with," McClanahan said. "He was playing a man who's nuts and thinks he's Sherlock Holmes and he did it with such complete finesse that oh, he should have played Sherlock Holmes for real. He was professional, he was prepared and he was definitive."

McClanahan thinks her long career as an actress has been lucky not just because it happened but because it may have been the only "right" thing to do with her life.

"It seems so long before I ever got my first break," McClanahan said. "When I first began to break through I was already 30 and I wanted it so badly. It's all I wanted professionally. In fact, I think it's all I'm really qualified to do. 'It's where my heart is, so once it began to happen I was so grateful. I feel I was created to act. That's what I am. I'm just so very happy to be doing it.'"

DON'T LET NATIONAL PIZZA MONTH slide by without a tribute to the 'pie' whose popularity Rome did not build in a day. Its ingredients vary throughout the world including this one made in Greek style with fresh tomatoes.

Varying food sources helps one to avoid contaminants

By Jacqueline Lanfker
Registered dietitian
American Heart Association

An area man recently wrote the American Heart Association to voice concern over contaminants in the nation's seafood supply, weighed against current health group guidelines recommending greater fish intake for everyone.

In short, he stated that eating fish, especially "scavenger" fish, subjects us to yet another form of harmful pollution.

Is there real reason to avoid fish? Or do the benefits outweigh any possible harmful effects? Let's examine the facts.

Water pollution continues to be a problem in most industrialized societies. Environmentalists, however, are making strides in effecting the clean-up of much of the pollution.

All fish and shellfish are highly nutritious and low in fat, especially saturated fat. Scavenger or bottom-feeding fish, such as catfish, flounder, shrimp and crab, are no less nutritious than other varieties. Despite popular opinion, bottom-feeding fish do not feed mainly off waste. In truth, their diets consist of whatever swims or floats by, usually live plants or animals. Occasionally, dead organic matter is a part of their diets, but it is digested into the same nutrients which make up living matter.

Most nutrition experts agree that the benefits of a diet rich in seafood, definitely overshadow the risks from possible contaminants. On the other hand, because all fish may absorb some pollutants from waters in which they live, consumers may have reason for concern.

The best way to enjoy the benefits from fish while minimizing the risks is to eat a variety of species of seafood. Rather than eating one favorite species, learn to enjoy three or more species so they are coming from a variety of waters.

The issue of pollution and the food supply is complex and frightening because virtually any food may be exposed to one harmful chemical or another. Once again, variety offers the best protection. A healthy diet consisting of lean meats, poultry, fish, grains, vegetables, fruits and low-fat dairy products provides good nutrition. Varying the choices in all food groups lessens the chance of digesting a harmful degree of any one environmental pollutant, from water or land.

The following recipe for Shrimp Gumbo provides healthy variety to the typical weekly menu. It makes an excellent light dinner entree or a hearty luncheon offering.

Shrimp gumbo

- 1 cup oil
- 2 cups sliced fresh okra or 1 (10 oz.) pkg. frozen okra, sliced
- 1 lb. fresh or frozen shrimp, peeled, deveined
- 1 cup chopped green onions and tops
- 3 cloves garlic, finely chopped
- 2 cups water
- 2 cups canned tomatoes with no added salt
- 2 whole bay leaves
- 6 drops pepper sauce
- 1 1/2 cups cooked rice

Saute okra in oil 10 minutes. Add shrimp, onions, garlic and pepper. Cook about 5 minutes.

Add water, tomatoes and bay leaves. Cover. Simmer 20 minutes.

Remove bay leaves. Sprinkle in pepper sauce.

Place 1/4 cup cooked rice in each of 6 soup bowls. Top with gumbo to serve.

Yields 6 servings; about 260 calories, 12 gm. fat, 126 mg. sodium, 110 mg. cholesterol each.

Reprinted with permission from the fourth edition of the "American Heart Association Cookbook," published by the American Heart Association Inc.

Chicken in cilantro sauce

- 1 small green bell pepper
- 1 small red bell pepper
- 1 small yellow bell pepper
- 3 tbsp. oil
- 6 (1 1/2 lb. total) chicken breast halves, skinned, boneless
- 2 (8 oz.) cans tomato sauce
- 1/2 cup fresh cilantro
- 1/2 cup coarsely chopped onion
- 1 medium clove garlic
- 1/2 tsp. salt

Slice peppers crosswise in rings. Lightly saute in oil in large skillet. Remove peppers. Drain on paper towels.

Brown chicken on both sides in oil remaining in skillet.

Place tomato sauce, cilantro, onion, garlic and salt in blender jar. Blend until smooth.

Pour over chicken in skillet. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat. Boil gently 5 minutes or until chicken is tender.

Place chicken on serving platter. Arrange peppers on top. Serve with remaining sauce.

Makes 6 servings; 225 calories, 26 gm. protein, 65 mg. cholesterol, 9 gm. carbohydrate, 9 gm. fat, 630 mg. sodium each.

Pizza wedges a smile during national salute

Whether it comes from the corner pizzeria or the trendiest restaurant, American pizza does not always look like its Neapolitan ancestor. No ingredient is off limits when it comes to toppings, and the shapes and flavors of crusts today are numerous.

National Pizza Month could be celebrated worldwide, considering its popularity. In fact, Domino's Pizza, which delivers pizza in nine foreign countries as well as the United States, says that tuna is a favorite topping in Tokyo and northern Germany.

A spinach and herb-flecked crust sets some pizza apart from the crowd, and a recipe to the effect follows. Chopped spinach, basil and garlic are simply mixed into a hot roll mix before kneading and patting the dough into a pan. Fresh toppings—sliced tomatoes instead of tomato sauce, olives, green onions and feta and mozzarella cheeses—give this pie its delicious, authentic Greek flavor.

Greek-style pizza With Fresh Tomatoes

- 1 (16 oz.) pkg. hot roll mix
- 1 tsp. basil leaves
- Pinch garlic powder
- 1 (9 oz.) pkg. frozen chopped spinach, thawed, squeezed to drain
- 1 cup hot tap water
- 2 tsp. oil
- 2 medium tomatoes, sliced
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 1 cup (4 oz.) crumbled feta cheese
- 2 cups (8 oz.) shredded mozzarella cheese
- 1/2 cup sliced black olives
- 1/2 cup sliced green onions

*Grease 14-inch pizza pan or 15-by-10 inch jellyroll pan.

In large bowl, combine flour mixture, yeast from foil packet, basil and garlic powder. Mix well. Stir in spinach, hot water and oil until dry particles are moistened.

Turn dough onto lightly floured surface. With greased or floured hands, shape dough in ball. Knead dough 3 to 5 minutes or until smooth. Cover dough with large bowl. Let rest 5 minutes.

With greased hands, pat dough into prepared pan, forming 1/2-inch rim around edges. Generously prick bottom of dough with tines of fork. Cover dough with plastic wrap or towel. On counter-top, let rise 15 minutes.

Uncover dough. Arrange tomato slices over surface of dough. Sprinkle with pepper, feta cheese and half the mozzarella. Sprinkle with olives and onions. Top with remaining cheese.

Bake at 425° for 18 to 25 minutes on lowest oven rack or until edges are deep golden brown. Makes 6 servings.

CARROT APPLESAUCE CAKE lets dessert define fine dining with its taste and nutritional value.

Conscientious diner saves the best for last

Desserts often present a problem for health-conscious cooks who do not want to wipe out the benefits of a nutritious meal with a high-fat, empty-calorie finale. But there are always vitamin-rich vegetables.

Yes, vegetable desserts. Specialty cookbooks available from a bookstore or library provide lots of ideas for using vegetables for dessert.

For more information about storing, handling and preparing fresh vegetables, send for the American Institute for Cancer Research's free "Handle Us Gently" guide by writing to: American Institute for Cancer Research, Department C39, Washington, D.C. 20069.

Almost any vegetable can be the basis of delicious, homemade desserts. Here is a vitamin-rich recipe for a starter in Carrot-Applesauce Cake.

Carrot-applesauce cake

2 cups whole wheat flour
1 tsp. baking soda

2 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. cloves
1 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 cup bran
4 eggs
1/2 cup oil
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1 (15 oz.) jar unsweetened applesauce (about 1 1/2 cups)
3 cups carrots, coarsely shredded (about 1 lb.)

Sift flour, baking soda, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg in large bowl. Stir in 1/2 cup bran, as well as any bran left in sifter.

Beat eggs lightly in medium bowl. Add oil, sugar, vanilla, applesauce and carrots to eggs. Stir. Pour into flour mixture. Stir just to moisten thoroughly.

Pour batter in lightly oiled 9-inch tube pan. Bake at 350° until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean, 60 to 65 minutes.

Cool cake in pan 10 to 15 minutes, then turn onto rack to cool completely.

Dust with confectioner's sugar, if desired. Wrap tightly to store. Yields 16 servings, each with 180 calories and 6 gm. fat.

Recipes

Stuffed potatoes

6 servings (3 cups) prepared mashed potatoes
1 1/2 cups grated cheese
1 cup minced onion
1 cup minced celery
1/2 tsp. sage
1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley
Paprika

Combine cooked potatoes, 1 cup cheese, onion, celery and sage. Mix well. Fill individual casseroles or formed foil with potato mixture. Top with remaining 1/2 cup cheese, paprika and parsley. Bake for 20 to 30 minutes at 450°. Serve immediately.

Makes 6 servings.
Variations: Omit sage. Add 1 cup blanched almonds, chopped. Slice frankfurter lengthwise, almost through. Top with potato mixture. Bake at 400° for 8 to 10 minutes or until top is brown.

Onion butters

Soften 1/2 cup butter or margarine to room temperature. Blend in 3 or 4 tablespoons finely chopped onion. Use as is on variety of sandwiches or crackers, or combine as follows:
Onion Mustard: Blend 2 tablespoons prepared mustard into basic Onion Butter. Use with ham sandwiches.

Onion-Herb: Add 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 teaspoon lemon juice and 1/2 teaspoon savory or dill weed. Especially good on seafood sandwiches.
Onion-Blue Cheese: Beat 1/4 to 1/2 cup blue cheese into Onion Butter. Special for hamburger or steak sandwiches.

A QUICK AND HEARTY autumn meal will turn back the clock for dinner.

Meat-and-potatoes remains a favorite of many in country

Dinner is on the table in minutes when one-dish meals are cooked in a microwave oven. For an unbeatable combination try Micro-Quick Sausage and Potato Dinner.

Quick-to-cook meals can start with convenient precooked foods like smoked sausage links. Ready-to-eat sausages are made of coarsely ground fresh beef and pork which have been both cooked and smoked. "Smokies" are seasoned with black pepper and traditionally sold in links like frankfurters. Cooking in a microwave oven brings them to the table in record time.

One-dish meals, such as this delicious microwaved sausage and potato dish, eliminate the need for many side dishes and offer convenient preparation and cleanup.

Micro-quick sausage and potato dinner

- 4 smoked sausage links (6 oz.)
- 1 medium potato, very thinly sliced (about 1 1/2 cups)
- 1 small onion, very thinly sliced
- 1/4 cup chopped red bell pepper

- Pinch pepper
- 1/4 tsp. dill weed
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 tsp. beef bouillon granules
- 1/4 tsp. cornstarch

Place half potato slices in bottom of 1-quart microwave-safe casserole. Top with onion, red pepper, pepper and half dill weed. Top with remaining potato slices.

Combine water, bouillon and cornstarch in 1-cup microwave-safe glass measure. Microwave at high 1 to 1 1/2 minutes, or until mixture boils.

Pour bouillon mixture over potato layers and sprinkle with remaining dill weed. Cover with plastic wrap. Vent and cook at high 9 minutes, rotating dish one-quarter turn halfway through cooking.

Top with sausages. Continue cooking, covered, at high 1 to 1 1/2 minutes or until heated through. Let stand, covered, 5 minutes.

Makes 2 servings, 390 calories, 15 gm. protein, 36 gm. fat, 24 gm. carbohydrate, 1,022 mg. sodium and 60 mg. cholesterol each.

Seafood meets criteria for healthy meal

Having the energy to enjoy life to the fullest at age 70, 80 or even 90 may depend on many factors like how much exercise is taken, what is eaten and a person's heredity. Whether the age is 22 or 72, regular exercise, such as walking, swimming or biking, combined with a whole-some diet full of fruits, vegetables, whole grains and protein foods low in fat may help avoid chronic diseases such as heart disease and diabetes.

Seafood is a healthy protein source that can be included in almost all diets. It is a particularly good choice for Americans watching their intake of fat, calories and sodium because seafood is low in these areas. Seafood can help everyone meet nutritional needs while reducing their intake of high-fat foods.

Consider the following benefits of eating seafood:

• Seafood is nutrient-dense. That means it offers large quantities of protein and significant amounts of vitamins and minerals, without high levels of saturated fats and calories.

• Seafood is an excellent source of complete protein providing all the essential amino acids. A single serving often provides a large portion of a person's daily protein needs. The protein in seafood is easily digestible, making it perfect for older adults.

• Seafood is a good source of B vitamins and provides such key minerals and trace elements as calcium, magnesium, potassium, phosphorus, sulfur, fluorine, selenium, copper, zinc and iodine.

• Seafood, in general, has a very small amount of fat. Most varieties of fish and shellfish contain less than five percent fat. Even high-fat fish generally have less than 15 percent fat. Compare this with a T-bone steak at 37 percent fat. Seafood is also lower in saturated fat than most other protein sources.

• All fish and shellfish contain omega-3 fatty acids which may help lower the levels of triglycerides in the bloodstream. In general, fish with a higher content of fat contain greater amounts of omega-3 fatty acids.

• Seafood is generally low in sodium. Most fresh finfish contain very low amounts of sodium, ranging from 60 to 100 milligrams per 100 grams (3½ ounces) of raw fish. Processing can increase these levels.

• Cholesterol levels are not significant in most seafood products. Finfish are generally quite low in cholesterol with shellfish having low to moderate amounts. Mollusks like clams, oysters and scallops have a large percentage of non-cholesterol sterols that help inhibit the absorption of cholesterol eaten at the same meal. Today shellfish are no longer excluded from typical low cholesterol diets because they contain very little saturated fat.

For those concerned about fat, sodium and cholesterol levels, here are three simple recipes that can be added to a collection of healthy seafood recipes. All the recipes make two servings, so solo-eaters can halve the recipe or freeze the extra portion for another time. They also can be doubled.

Catfish piccata

- 1 (9 to 12 oz.) skinless catfish fillet, cut in 2 serving pieces
- Pinch salt and pepper

- 1 tsp. flour
- 1 tsp. butter or margarine
- 2 tsp. lemon juice
- 2 tsp. minced parsley
- 4 thin slices lemon for garnish

Pat catfish dry. Season lightly with salt and pepper. Dredge in flour, shaking off excess.

Measure thickness of fish at thickest part to estimate cooking time, allowing 10 minutes per inch of thickness.

Heat butter in nonstick skillet over moderate heat until it bubbles. Add fish. Cook 3 minutes. Turn fish and continue cooking until fish flakes when tested with fork. Remove to warm plates.

Add lemon juice and parsley to pan. Cook 30 seconds, stirring to loosen contents in pan. Pour over hot fish. Garnish with lemon slices.

Makes 2 servings.

Basil baked cod filets

- ½ lb. cod, haddock or orange roughly file
- 1 tsp. olive oil
- 1 tsp. lemon juice
- ¼ tsp. basil, crushed
- Pinch black pepper
- 2 plum tomatoes, cored, cut

crosswise in thin slices

2 tsp. grated parmesan cheese

Pat fish dry. Cut in 2 serving pieces.

Combine oil and lemon juice in baking dish. Add fish. Turn to coat both sides. Sprinkle with basil, pepper and salt. Overlap tomatoes in even layer on fish. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese.

Cover with foil. Bake at 400° about 10 to 15 minutes or until fish flakes when tested with fork.

Makes 2 servings.

Baked oriental flounder packets

- 2 flounder or sole filets, about ½ lb. each
- Pinch pepper
- 2 tsp. oil
- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) Japanese or Oriental style frozen vegetables, thawed, or 2 cups mixed frozen vegetables, thawed

1 tbsp. low-sodium soy sauce

1 tsp. cornstarch

Hot rice, if desired

Pat fish dry. Season with pepper. Place in baking dish.

Heat oil in medium skillet or wok until hot. Add vegetables. Stir-fry over high heat until tender-crisp, about 3 minutes.

Combine soy sauce and cornstarch. Add to vegetables. Stir-fry 1 minute longer.

Spoon vegetable mixture over center third of fish. Fold over ends of fish to enclose vegetables. Cover with foil. Bake at 350° about 10 minutes or until fish flakes when tested with fork and vegetables are tender.

Transfer fish to warm plates. Serve with rice, if desired.

Makes 2 servings.

BASIL BAKED COD will be glad to join a collection of favorite healthy seafood recipes. It is an interesting combination of cod, haddock or orange roughly file, olive oil, lemon juice, basil, crushed black pepper, salt and tomatoes.

FILL A TUREEN with a fall classic, Vegetable Patch Soup, made simply with red beans, fresh vegetables, broth and juice.

Autumn colors inspire flavors that fill vegetable patch soup

Let autumn inspire the flavors that rise with falling temperatures. Frost on the pumpkin will not matter with warming soups and an autumn-ized salad.

Hearty Vegetable Patch Soup is filled with the colors of autumn. Golden winter squash, bright orange carrots, light green cabbage and yellow turnips are just a few of its delicious-looking and tasty ingredients that go together in a hurry.

Hot Tuna Nicoise Salad is a good way to stretch summer's finest flavors into a new seasonal classic. It's great for entertaining and provides an attractive array of tastes and textures. Another fast-to-fix dish is Tortilla Soup. It is easy to prepare and provides a different use of potatoes. Chicken broth enhances the flavor of the soup's cumin, onion, chilies and cheese.

Vegetable patch soup

- 3 cups vegetable juice
- 2 cans (14 1/2 oz. each) chicken broth
- 1 can (about 8 oz.) red kidney beans, drained
- 2 cups cabbage, cut in long thin shreds
- 2 cups cubed winter squash
- 1 cup diagonally sliced carrots
- 1 cup cubed potato
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese
- 1 cup turnip cut in matchstick-thin strips (1 inch)
- 1 pinch pepper
- 2 tsp. chopped fresh parsley

In 4-quart saucepan over high heat, combine vegetable juice, chicken broth, beans, cabbage, squash, carrots, potato, onion, cheese, turnip and pepper. Heat to boiling.

Reduce heat to low. Simmer 20 minutes or until vegetables are tender, stirring occasionally. Add parsley.

Makes 10 cups or 10 servings, 87 calories each.

Hot tuna nicoise salad

- 2 cans (about 7 oz. each) tuna packed in oil
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 large cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tsp. basil leaves, crushed
- 1 can (14 1/2 oz.) chicken broth
- 1 cup can water
- 1 lb. small red-skinned potatoes, quartered
- 1/2 lb. whole fresh green beans
- 2 anchovy fillets, minced
- 2 tsp. chopped fresh parsley
- 1 tsp. capers
- Dark salad greens (arugula, watercress, etc.)
- 2 hard cooked eggs, cut in wedges
- 1 medium tomato, cut in wedges

Drain tuna, reserving 2 table-spoons oil. Flake tuna.

In 10-inch skillet over low heat, in reserved oil cook onion with garlic and basil until tender.

Add broth, water and potatoes. Simmer 5 minutes.

Add green beans, anchovies, parsley and capers. Continue cooking until beans and potatoes are tender. Stir in tuna.

Serve over salad greens. Top with egg and tomato wedges. Makes 7 cups or 4 servings, 430 calories per serving.

Tortilla soup

- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 medium clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 tsp. chili powder
- 1/2 tsp. cumin
- Pinch crushed oregano leaves
- 1 can (10 1/2 oz.) chicken broth
- 1 soup can water
- 1/2 cup chopped tomato
- 1 can (4 oz.) chopped green chilies
- 3 corn tortillas
- Shredded Monterey Jack cheese

In 2-quart saucepan over medium-high heat, in 1 tablespoon hot oil cook onion with garlic, chili powder, cumin and oregano until tender. Stir in chicken broth, water, tomato and chilies. Reduce heat to low. Simmer 10 minutes or until hot.

Meanwhile, cut tortillas in thin strips. In 10-inch skillet, heat 1/2 inch oil to 375°. Fry tortilla strips a few at a time, until crisp. Drain on paper towels.

To serve soup, place several tortilla strips in three 8-ounce serving bowls. Ladle soup into each bowl. Sprinkle with shredded cheese. Serve immediately.

Makes 3 cups or 3 servings, 195 calories each.

Seafood pizza supreme

- 8 oz. peeled small shrimp, crabmeat or crab-flavored surimi seafood (See Note)
- 2 1/2 tsp. olive oil
- 1/2 tsp. oregano
- 1 cup thinly sliced zucchini plus 1 cup sliced mushrooms (or 2 cups of either)
- 1/2 cup freshly ground black pepper
- 1 loaf (1 lb.) frozen bread dough, thawed overnight in refrigerator, warmed at room temperature 1 hour
- Commeal
- Dash crushed, dried chili peppers (optional)
- 1 cup shredded mozzarella cheese
- 3 tsp. grated parmesan cheese

Combine seafood with 1 table-spoon olive oil and 1/4 teaspoon oregano.

Combine zucchini, mushrooms, black pepper, 1 1/2 table-spoons oil and 1/2 teaspoon oregano. Knead dough lightly to remove air bubbles. Roll to 15-inch circle. Fit onto commeal-sprinkled pizza pan or baking sheet. Form edge of dough into rim.

Sprinkle with chili pepper and half the mozzarella. Top with vegetable mixture. Sprinkle with remaining mozzarella. Bake at 425° for 10 minutes or until crust is lightly browned.

Arrange seafood on pizza. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Bake 3 to 5 minutes longer or until seafood is thoroughly heated.

Yields 1 large (15-inch) pizza. Note: To make fresh scallop or shrimp variation, use 8 ounces scallops or shelled raw medium shrimp. Cut large scallops in quarters; cut shrimp in half length-wise. Marinate as directed.

While pizza is baking, heat skillet and saute seafood mixture 1 or 2 minutes or just until opaque throughout. Drain and arrange on partially cooked pizza.

Trick or Treat!

Halloween ghosts glow when treats appear

By Sandra Hounson
Home Economist

Halloween means ghosts, goblins and goodies. Trick-or-treating has given way to parties at home where children invite a few friends for their own special party.

Those fun-loving little hands easily help make their own party treats in a microwave. With a little adult supervision and guidance, wee pumpkins and policemen can make many snacks for their party.

Heat 1 quart apple cider in a large microwave-safe bowl on high 5 to 8 minutes. Add 2 tablespoons orange-flavored drink mix, with a dash of cinnamon and a dash of nutmeg. As the hot spicy cider is served, add a stick of cinnamon to each adult's cup or a peppermint candy stick to the young party's drinks.

Peanut Butter Granola would match it perfectly for black cats in the crowd.

Peanut butter granola

- 2 cups uncooked oats
- 1 cup wheat germ
- 1/2 cup sesame seeds
- 1/2 cup coconut
- 1/2 cup peanut butter
- 1/2 cup honey
- 2 tsp. oil
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1 tsp. salt

In large microwave-safe bowl, combine oats, wheat germ, sesame seeds and coconut.

In second smaller bowl, combine peanut butter, honey, oil, vanilla and salt. Microwave on high 2 to 3 minutes, stirring after half the time.

Four peanut butter mixture on oat mix. Stir. Microwave on high 4 to 7 minutes, stirring every 2 minutes, until mixture stiffens and appears dry.

Spread on cookie sheet to cool. Break up mixture with pancake turner as it cools.

Variations: Add other chopped nuts in place of sesame seeds. Or just before spreading on cookie sheet, stir in dried apples, raisins or dried apricots.

mon Toasted Nuts to munch.

Hot Halloween Punch

- 12 whole cloves
- 4 lemon slices
- 1 cup apple cider
- 1/2 cup bottled cranberry juice
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 6 tbsp. apricot nectar
- 1 tsp. lemon juice
- 4 sugar cubes
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
- Pinch mace
- Pinch nutmeg

Insert 3 cloves in each lemon slice.

Combine apple cider, cranberry, orange, apricot and lemon juice in large bowl. Add lemon slices. Heat 8 to 12 minutes on high or until hot.

Toss sugar cubes with cinnamon, mace and nutmeg. Add 1 cube to each cup when serving. Makes 4 punch servings.

Cinnamon toasted nuts

- 1 tbsp. butter or margarine
- 1 cup walnut or pecan halves or pieces
- 3 tbsp. sugar
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon

Mix sugar and cinnamon in small bowl.

Melt butter in small dish on high 20 seconds. Add nuts. Coat with butter. Add nuts, a few at a time, to sugar-cinnamon mixture. Coat evenly.

Spread on paper plate. Cook on medium-high (75 percent power) 2 minutes or until hot.

Variation: Add pinch curry powder to melted butter; omit sugar and cinnamon mixture. Repeat 1 to 2 minutes on medium-high setting.

Halloween faces

- 1 cup butter
- 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 2 cups flour
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup quick oats
- 1 cup flaked coconut
- 1 cup finely chopped chocolate-covered toffee candy
- Granulated sugar
- Decorative icing
- Raisins
- Candy corn

Cream butter and sugar in large mixer bowl until light and fluffy. Beat in egg and vanilla.

Mix together flour, baking powder, cinnamon and salt. Stir in oats, coconut and toffee candy.

Drop by rounded tablespoons on ungreased cookie sheet. Flatten with bottom of glass dipped in sugar. Bake 15 to 18 minutes at 350°. Remove from sheets. Cool completely on wire rack. Store in freezer. Later decorate using raisins and candy corn secured with small amount of icing.

Recipes

Apple pie

- Double crust pastry
- 2 lb. apples, cored, peeled, sliced (about 6 cups)
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 tsp. cornstarch
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 tsp. margarine

Line 9-inch pie plate with half pastry rolled to 1/4-inch thickness, allowing 1-inch overhang.

In large bowl, toss apple slices with lemon juice.

In small bowl, stir sugar, cornstarch and cinnamon. Add to apples. Toss to coat well.

Spoon into pie plate. Dot with margarine. Roll out remaining pastry to 12-inch circle. Cover pie with pastry. Seal and flute edge.

If desired, re-roll excess pastry. Cut out apple shape. Place in center of top crust.

If desired, brush crust lightly with milk and sprinkle with sugar. Make several slits in top crust to permit steam to escape.

Bake in 425° oven 50 minutes or until crust is golden and apples are tender.

Carrot orange bran bread

- 1 cup low-fat milk
- 2 cups raisin bran
- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup grated orange rind
- 1/2 egg whites, slightly beaten
- 1 cup oil
- 1 cup coarsely grated carrots

Pour milk over cereal in large bowl. Set aside. Mix flour with sugar, baking powder and salt. Add orange rind. Mix in egg whites and oil to softened cereal. Add to flour mixture. Mix just enough to moisten flour.

Pour into greased 9-by-5 inch loaf pan. Bake at 350° for 65 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes.

Remove from pan. Finish cooling on rack.

Yields 12 slices; 180 calories, 4 gm. protein, 52 gm. carbohydrate, 1 gm. fat, no cholesterol, 210 mg. sodium and 2 gm. dietary fiber each.

Fruit-filled pineapple

- 1 medium pineapple
- 1 (1 lb.) can mandarin orange sections, drained
- 1/2 cup maraschino cherries, halved, or fresh strawberries, halved
- 1 cup peaches, cut up
- 1 cup shredded coconut
- 1/2 cup orange marmalade
- 1/2 cup bourbon or rum

Split pineapple in half lengthwise. Hollow out. Cut fruit in chunks.

Combine pineapple chunks, orange sections, cherries, peaches and coconut.

Warm orange marmalade slightly. Mix with liquor. Pour over fruit and mix well.

Ham dijonaise

- 1 (10 to 12 lb.) fresh ham
- 1 garlic clove, mashed
- 1/2 cup Dijon mustard
- 1 tsp. ginger
- 1/2 cup honey

Remove rind from ham, leaving shank end covered. Rub with mashed garlic.

Score fat on ham in diamonds. Place ham on rack in foil-lined roasting pan. Roast 2 1/2 to 3 hours at 350°, or until meat thermometer registers 180°.

While ham is cooking, thoroughly combine mustard, ginger and honey in small bowl. After ham has cooked 30 minutes, spoon glaze over. Spoon more glaze over ham every 10 minutes.

Serve ham warm or cool with any remaining mustard glaze.

Reserve 1/2 cup crushed graham crackers for Graham Cracker Topping.

Beat remaining graham crackers, baking mix, sugar, egg, milk, shortening and vanilla in large bowl on low speed, scraping bowl occasionally, 4 minutes.

Four into pan. Bake at 350° until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean, 30 to 35 minutes. Cool slightly.

Sprinkle Graham Cracker Topping over cake. Broil cake about 3 inches from heat until topping is golden brown, 1 to 2 minutes. Cool slightly. Drizzle with Glaze.

Graham Cracker Topping: Cut 3 tablespoons firm margarine or butter into reserved crushed graham crackers, 1/2 cup buttermilk baking mix and 1/4 cup sugar. Glaze: Beat 1/2 cup confectioner's sugar and 2 to 3 teaspoons milk until smooth and of desired consistency.

Pear and grape compote

- 1 can (8 oz.) pineapple chunks or tidbits, packed in juice
- Water
- 1 (3 inch) cinnamon stick
- 2 whole allspice
- 2 anjou or bosc pears, cored, sliced
- 2 cups grapes, halved, seeded if necessary
- 1 papaya, pared, seeded, cut in eighths
- 1/2 cup ginger ale

Drain pineapple, reserving liquid.

Add water to reserved liquid to equal 3/4 cup. Add cinnamon and allspice to liquid. Bring to boil. Reduce heat. Simmer 15 minutes.

Combine pineapple, pears, grapes and papaya. Pour hot liquid over mixture. Cool at room temperature, gently stirring occasionally.

Just before serving, add ginger ale. Serve in individual dishes.

Makes 4 servings; 174 calories, 1.6 gm. protein, 1.1 gm. fat, 44.3 gm. carbohydrate, no cholesterol and 8 mg. sodium each.

Microwave chicken with wine and mushrooms

- 1 tbsp. oil
- 1 medium green pepper, cut in strips
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- 1 tsp. cornstarch
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup chablis or other dry white wine
- 1 pouch onion soup mix
- 2 whole chicken breasts, split, skinned, boned (about 1 1/2 lb., boneless)

In 3-quart microwave-safe casserole, combine oil, green pepper and mushrooms. Cover. Microwave on high 3 minutes or until tender, stirring once during cooking.

In cup, stir together cornstarch and water. Add to casserole with wine and soup mix. Mix well.

Arrange chicken breasts in casserole, placing thicker portions toward edge of dish. Cover. Microwave on high 10 minutes or until chicken is nearly done, rearranging chicken and stirring liquid once during cooking.

Let stand, covered, 5 minutes or until chicken is no longer pink in center.

Makes 4 servings.

Party casserole

- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) uncooked medium noodles
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 lb. ground beef
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 tsp. pepper sauce
- 2 tsp. chili powder
- 1/2 tsp. oregano leaves
- 1/2 tsp. sugar
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 3 cans (8 oz. each) tomato sauce
- 1 can (12 oz.) whole kernel corn
- 1/2 cup red wine, if desired
- 1 lb. sharp cheddar cheese, grated

Cook noodles according to package directions. Drain.

Melt butter in large skillet. Add onion. Cook until tender but not brown.

Add beef. Brown, breaking up with fork. Sprinkle salt, pepper sauce, chili, oregano, sugar and garlic over meat. Stir in green pepper, tomato sauce and corn. Mix well. Heat to blend flavors. Add wine.

Turn noodles into 3-quart casserole. Cover with meat mixture. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake, uncovered, in 350° oven 45 minutes.

Yields 16 servings. Recipe may be doubled for 30 servings.

Note: Casserole can be prepared ahead of time and refrigerated. Allow 1 hour baking time.

Potato-cheese puffs

- 1 1/2 cups water
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup dry mashed potato flakes
- 3 eggs at room temperature
- 1 cup coarsely grated Swiss cheese

1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese

In 3-quart saucepan, bring water, butter and salt to boil. Remove from heat.

Mix potato flakes and flour. Add to saucepan. Return to medium heat. Stir vigorously until dough forms ball and leaves sides of pan.

Remove from heat. Add eggs one at a time. Beat until dough is glossy and stiff. This may be done in food processor. Stir in Swiss cheese.

Place 1/4 cup dough on greased baking sheet 2 inches apart. Sprinkle tops with parmesan cheese. Bake at 375° about 30 minutes or until golden. Puffs will be slightly creamy inside.

Egg 'n cheese bake

- eggs, slightly beaten
- 1/2 cup milk

1 can (4 oz.) mushroom stems and pieces, drained

Dash pepper

1 pkg. (4 oz.) frozen creamed chipped beef in a bag, thawed

1 cup (1 oz.) shredded Monterey Jack cheese

1 cup (1 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese

1 cup bacon bits

Parsley, if desired

In medium bowl, combine eggs, milk, mushrooms and pepper. Pour into 1-quart greased baking dish. Bake in 325° oven 10 minutes.

Stir egg mixture. Spread creamed chipped beef on top. Sprinkle Monterey Jack and cheddar cheeses and bacon on top. Bake additional 20 minutes or until filling is set.

Garnish with parsley.

Makes 2 servings.

CHEF TELL ERHARDT feels at home with European foods that have been Americanized.

TV Chef Tell, muesli counted among fine European 'imports'

By Janice Denham
Food editor

Quality European imports run the gamut from croissants to bottled water. One of its finest representatives is Chef Tell Erhardt, now an American citizen, who came here as an accomplished chef about 17 years ago.

Erhardt, best known as Chef Tell on television's "PM Magazine," says the fascination with European products has been reciprocated for many years. He remembers his very young days in Stuttgart, West Germany, where his family housed American soldiers.

"We would get CARE boxes. We loved sliced cheese. Ice cream in half-gallon containers was wonderful and such a treat. We'd let it melt halfway, then eat all the drips and the solid part," he said on a recent stop in St. Louis.

"One of the latest rages to move across the Atlantic to the United States is muesli, the type of cereal he ate when growing up. He is traveling on behalf of Kellogg's Muesli brand cereal.

"My mother made it once in a while on Sunday mornings. She would soak the oats overnight in orange juice or milk. She dried apples and peaches herself. She would cut them up. She added some honey. I got it as a special treat. She would add nuts from around where we lived, too. Muesli became popular in the '60s after the Swiss Olympic team was eating it," he said.

"Today's homemade muesli may not be soaked overnight because the live and dried grains said Erhardt, do not require as much softening.

"Muesli is a general term for a European breakfast mixture of fresh or dried fruit, nuts and uncooked cereals. It was touted by Zurich physician Max Bircher-Benner who lived and practiced until the early 1900s. It was considered a prescription for perfect health, an ideal balance of essential nutrients in a breakfast meal.

He insisted it contain apples and oats. Cold milk or yogurt was used to finish it at the table. Added fresh fruit could transform it into a breakfast, lunch or dessert treat. Today the addition of whipping cream converts it into dessert.

Essentially it contains the same ingredients as granola, but does not contain the fat or oil that is toasted with the ingredients that gives granola a distinctive taste.

Erhardt enjoys his travels and brings back, just like most Americans who visit Europe today, ideas for serving at his table. His "table" includes two restaurants, Chef Tell's in Philadelphia and Chef Tell's Grand Old House in the Grand Cayman Islands. He was leaving St. Louis for the Caribbean to survey what damage had come to his home there and the restaurant. The phoned report was that the recent hurricane caused only minimal damage at both locations.

He said the return in American cuisine to "down-home" cooking parallels the interest in European food because some of the best meals on that continent are ones styled in the home—a bowl of stew, plate of pasta or freshly grilled meat. He recently vacationed in Spain, so expects to inject some of the popular foods of its regions into his cooking, particularly in the way of seafood and rice dishes.

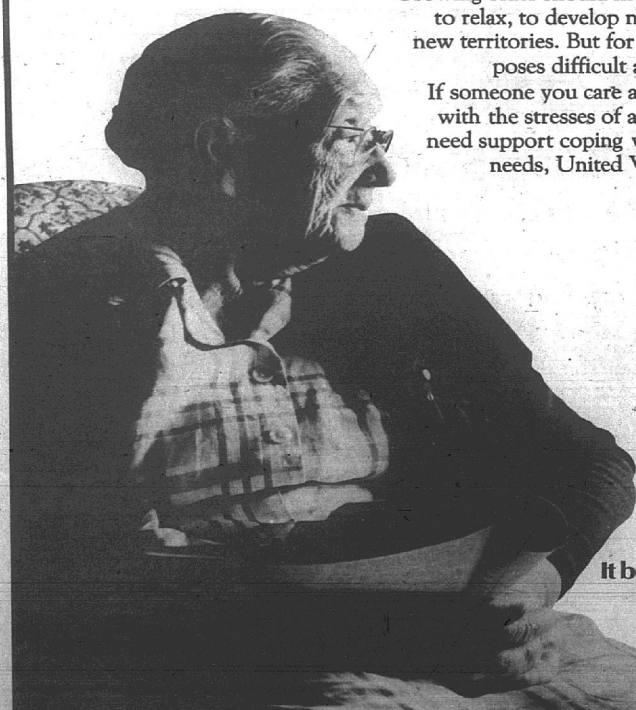

It will be easy to spot the European influence he exerts because he is putting the finishing touches on a 12-part cooking series, "Chef Tell Cooks," which is expected to air on PBS next spring, and a new cookbook of the same name for distribution at the same time.

He said the children who watched him on previous shows were his first admirers on those television programs. Youngsters do not pay attention to accents, he said, so they were quick to come to his rapid-fire delivery of offering cooking tips in a very short time. He feels much of his style went into the Swiss Chef which was a character on "The Muppet Show."

Dixon, Simon falter in environmentalists' poll

By Edward Hearn
States News Service

WASHINGTON — Senators Alan Dixon and Paul Simon got a glacial start in a national environmental and energy group that scrutinized the voting records of the members of the 100th Congress during the past two years.

Although the Illinois Democrats got some of the lowest rankings, the average score of the Congress wasn't much better, with the Senate getting 47 percent and the House 54 percent — flunking grades in any classroom if 60 is deemed a passing score.

The scores were released by the League of Conservation Voters, a nonpartisan environmental protection group that publishes "The National Environmental Scorecard" at the end of every two-year congressional cycle.

League chairman Brent Blackwelder noted in an introduction that the scorecard is "widely considered to be the definitive rating for members of Congress on environmental and energy issues."

He added that the scorecard "offers a clear picture of which members of Congress are chosen to protect our natural heritage and which ones are postponing what will be even more painful decisions for future generations."

Spokesman Pam Huey defended Simon's record on the environment but added that the lawmaker's Washington office had not seen a copy of the report.

"We think Sen. Simon has a good environmental record and this is without seeing the scorecard. He is committed to the environment," she said.

Dixon pressed Secretary Bill Adams said he wouldn't comment until he had seen the League's report, which notes that Dixon missed a single environmental-related vote while Simon missed four, two of which occurred during Simon's quest for the Democratic nomination.

Two years ago, both Illinois senators had higher marks from the League for their votes during the 99th Congress, with Simon scoring 83 percent and Dixon 50 percent.

In the Metro East and southern Illinois regions, Rep. Richard J. Durbin, D-20th, received a 75 percent ranking. Rep. Ken Gray, D-22nd, got 44 percent, and the late Rep. Mel Price, D-21st, got 60 percent.

The average score for the 22 Illinois House members was 54 percent, matching the entire House's 54 percent average. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-21st, Illinois' senior senator, elected in August, was not included in scoring for the 100th Congress.

House rankings were based on 13 votes and the lawmakers' stances on three pending measures, one relating to acid rain and two on protection of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in Alaska.

Dixon and Simon were graded on seven votes on environmental measures and their positions on pending legislation dealing with acid rain, endangered species and Alaskan timberland protection.

The League gave Dixon and Simon pro-environment scores for their 1987 votes to strengthen the Clean Water Act and override President Reagan's veto of a bill that would set federal energy efficiency standards. Dixon, however, opposed the five other votes supported by the League including a law to ban lead-based paint on national parks and wildlife refuges and an amendment to the Price-Anderson Act of 1957 that would increase the accident liability of nuclear power companies that carry out projects for the Department of Energy.

Simon won additional points for signing a letter urging the Senate leadership to allow a vote on tougher acid-rain controls to occur, and for cosponsoring a bill to help give greater protection to endangered species.

The average of seven midwestern states—Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio—was 60 percent in the House and 52 percent in the Senate, compared with the six England states that scored the best nationally with 79 percent in the House and 78 percent in the Senate.

The League gave its 100 percent ranking to Sen. John F. Kerry, D-Mass., Sen. John H. Chafee, R-R.I., and Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt. Six in the House got 100 percent rankings, including Illinois Rep. Lane Evans, D-17th.

Five in the Senate and four in the House got the League's lowest ranking of 0 percent, including Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Rep. Jack F. Kemp, R-N.Y.

Texas Senator and Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen got 40 percent and Indiana Senator Dan Quayle, the GOP Vice-Presidential nominee, got 20 percent.

Cynicism said leading to voter turnout downward trend

By Shawn Candela
Staff affiliate

BELLELEVILLE — A presidential election and tax referendum duty to register to vote, which can pull voters out of their homes and to the polls, claims a Fair County Clerk

Wayne Ault, political science instructor at Belleville Area College, said that although the presidential election still draws voters to the polls, the nationwide voting participation in presidential elections has been decreasing steadily since 1960, when turnout was at an all-time high of 65 percent.

In 1980, turnout dropped to 54 percent, and in 1984 it decreased to 52 percent.

"It's possible that for the first time, in 1988, we'll have barely 50 percent or possibly less than 50 percent," he said.

Ault said the lower numbers indicate apathy on the part of the voting public.

"In spite of the fact that it's easier to vote today, since civil rights legislation was brought in and the age limit was dropped to 18 in 1971, people aren't voting," he said.

Ault cited two reasons why many voters may decide to stay home on election day.

"Some feel they don't count," he said. "They think, 'Why vote? One vote doesn't make any difference.' But they don't realize there are close elections at all levels of government."

"Last year, in the sheriff's race in Monroe County, there was a tie. They had to flip a coin to decide. Obviously, a lot of voters didn't come out, and their vote would have decided it."

The other reason, one which has affected voters for the last two decades, is a lack of belief in the government, Ault said.

"With scandals like Watergate and with the Vietnam War, there's been a lot of cynicism," he said. "Before the scandals, people believed in the government that what it said was the truth. Today, people question the government."

Ault said scandals involving high-ranking government officials, including Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart and President Ronald Reagan (whose staff members were involved in the Iran-Contra affair), have led to a loss of belief in the idea that politicians aren't reliable people.

"As Americans, we expect high standards in our leaders," he said. "We think they should measure up to the standards of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln. When they don't, we turn our backs on the system. We become cynical."

But Ault said that perception is far from accurate.

"Overwhelmingly, most politicians are dedicated people who undergo a lot of scrutiny," he said. "I don't think they should measure up to the standards of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln. When they don't, we turn our backs on the system. We become cynical."

Firefighter visits Parkview students

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The importance of home evacuation plans, smoke detector maintenance and basic fire prevention and safety was explained to Parkview Elementary pupils during a Fire Prevention Week visit from Long Lake firefighters.

Students were given a guided tour of a pumper truck, to find stickers for their windows, and literature for a home evacuation plan.

Mike Gutierrez, Long Lake fire prevention instructor, told the children they should know at least two ways out of their homes and should know their way around well enough to escape in the dark.

"When there is a fire, your room will probably be dark or full of smoke, and you won't be able to see," Gutierrez said. "You have to know where your door is because you don't want to end up in the closet."

The closet idea seemed to amuse the children, but Gutierrez saw it as a less than humorous subject. "This happens quite often," he said. "The smaller ones hide themselves in closets and we have no way to tell that they are in there."

That's why Gutierrez told the children to "make noise." "If you're in a fire, and you are trapped like that, scream! Yell! Do anything so that someone can hear you and get to you," he said.

Gutierrez also explained the "Stop, Drop, Roll" technique to be used if someone is on fire. And he explained the dangers of grease fires.

"Don't use water on a grease fire — ever!" Gutierrez cautioned. "Use baking soda or a fire extinguisher because water just helps the hot oil to spread, causing the fire to spread."

Third and fourth graders saw a video in which a two-story house burned down, the result of a cigarette being tossed into a trashcan.

"It's important because it shows them the damage a fire causes and it gives them an idea of how fast fire spreads and how little time they really have to get out," Gutierrez said.

Markell enters nursing school

Nicole Markell of Granite City has entered the Barnes Hospital School of Nursing in St. Louis. She is a graduate of Granite City High School.

The Barnes Hospital School is a three-year diploma nursing program affiliated with Barnes Hospital and Washington University Medical Center. Students attend academic classes at the St. Louis College of Pharmacy and receive extensive clinical experience at Barnes Hospital.

The 1988 freshman class of 133 is the largest in the school's history, and one of the largest this year at any hospital-based nursing school in the nation.

LeAnn Erwin nominated for EIU queen

LeAnn Erwin, daughter of James Erwin of Granite City, was a recent nominee for homecoming queen at Eastern Illinois University, Charleston, representing Lawson Residence Hall.

The junior psychology major is a resident assistant at Lawson Hall.

Thirty-one Eastern students competed for the titles of homecoming queen and king.

Lisa Sheikh earns degree at U of K

More than 395 students received degrees from the University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kan., after the 1988 summer session, according to KU's Department of Educational Services. Lisa Sherine Sheikh received a bachelor of science degree in journalism/public relations. She is the daughter of Dr. Zaki Sheikh, 2552 Westmoreland Drive.

SIUE names students to dean's list

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville had 247 students qualifying for the dean's list for the summer quarter.

To qualify for the dean's list, a student must maintain a grade point average of 4.5 or better and have 12 hours calculated (B is equivalent to 4.0, and A to 5.0).

Students qualifying for the dean's list are named below by hometown.

Granite City: October Bowers, Mitzi Brigman, Jeffrey Fromme, Matthew Gasparovic, Christopher Gundlach, Claudia Kachigian, Carol Patterson, Katherine Kopelousos Presley, Lori Richardson and Susan Ann Walton.

Madison: Michael Chatman.

Bulgarians found roots in Granite

Trendafil Mitev will be spending the academic year at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville retracing the footsteps of his fellow countrymen and women who settled in America during the period from 1878 until the beginning of World War II.

Mitev is associate professor of historical studies at the Clement of Ohrid University of Sofia in Bulgaria. His stay at SIUE is being underwritten by a Fulbright research grant.

"From the beginning of the 19th century, many Bulgarians arrived in America," he said, adding that many of them settled in the Midwest. "Chicago, St. Louis, Madison and Granite City were very important Bulgarian communities from the beginning of the century," Mitev said.

Two Bulgarian churches were erected in Granite City, along with a historically significant newspaper, "The Narodn Glas" (The National Herald). The paper, published in Granite City for 35 years, contained valuable information concerning problems faced by the Bulgarians as they began their new lives in America.

"This newspaper contained religious, cultural and business information, and advertisements concerning American Bulgarian society, as well as important news from Europe," Mitev said.

In the beginning, many of the people could not speak English. They kept their traditions. They had their holidays in these societies," Mitev said.

"During the first year, they didn't have connections with the American people."

"By the second year, they had learned a lot about American culture."

By then, the Bulgarians had integrated American customs and traditions into the traditions they had brought with them.

Mitev said the first-generation immigrants only read books published in their native language. "Now, this literature is very old. The books are all in private collections," he said.

Mitev specializes in modern Bulgarian history. He is the author of four monographs on the subject.

No miracle for Trojans; Assumption rolls, 39-0

By Mike Blackshere

Correspondent

EAST ST. LOUIS — The Trojans were looking for a miracle here Saturday.

One big upset could have lessened the disappointment they have experienced this season.

Instead, they got just what the Assumption Pioneers' first seven opponents of 1988 got — a sound whipping.

Assumption defeated Madison 39-0 to go 8-0 on the season while Madison dropped to 2-6. The Pioneers are looking toward the state playoffs while the Trojans are looking toward 1989.

Pioneer coach Jim Monken is in his 26th year at Assumption, and he knew he had to make sure his team didn't have a let-down against Madison.

"They really made us work today," Monken said. "Madison always comes to play Assumption. They really battled us early in the game. Their level of intensity may have been a little higher than ours in the beginning."

Madison may always come to play, but they have always lost to the Pioneers during Monken's

26 years. It certainly came as no surprise this year since the Trojans are having their worst season since Don Smith became head coach six years ago and the Pioneers are a state power-house.

"We beat ourselves," Smith said. "Physically, we have the talent to play much better. We just make too many mental mistakes. That has been our problem all year — no leadership on the field and no intensity."

The Trojans managed to keep the score close in the first half. Assumption scored on its second possession to go up 7-0. In from two yards out to complete a 75-yard drive. The drive was highlighted by a 45-yard pass completion from Vernon Slaughter to Chris Harris.

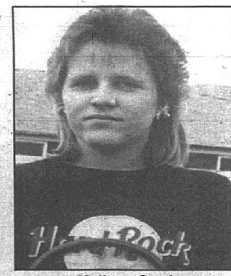

Madison was unable to move the ball and had to punt. Chris Harris fielded the ball at his own 49-yard line, broke a couple of tackles and returned it all the way to the end zone. Assumption led 13-0 with less than a minute left in the first quarter.

The Trojans moved the ball a

Weckman wins three of five matches at state tournament

MT. PROSPECT — Keri Weckman might really be ready to make a big move by the time next year's state tennis tournament rolls around.

Weckman has improved on her performance in the IHSA state meet in each of her three years. The Granite City High School junior didn't win a single match at state as a freshman in 1986. Last year she won one match.

Last weekend, Weckman won more matches than she lost and advanced three rounds into the consolation bracket in Mt. Prospect.

Weckman began the tournament on Thursday with a 6-1, 6-2 win over Kim Ashley of Teutopolis. But the Warriors' top player was sent into the consolation bracket with a 6-4, 6-1 loss to Belvidere's Fil Marcial. Weckman closed out the first day of competition with a 6-2, 6-1 win over Claudine Crompton of Ottawa.

On Friday, Weckman kept her season going after rain had delayed competition for most of the morning. She beat Jenny Furla of Champaign Centennial 7-5, 6-1. But the season finally ended with a 6-0, 6-2 loss to Tammy Hull of Bennett.

Warrior freshman Melissa Crook went immediately into the consolation bracket with a 6-2, 6-1 loss to Nnedi Okaraso of Homewood-Flossmoor on Thursday morning. Crook defeated Michelle Luttrell of Danville 6-2, 6-1, but was eliminated by a 6-4, 6-4 loss to Springfield Sacred Heart's Wendy Anderson on Friday afternoon.

Bruised Warriors take regional title

By Dave Whaley

Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — The Warriors finally have something they can hang their hats on from the 1988 soccer season — and a few bruises to go with it.

Granite City survived a physical beating from the Wood River Oilers on Monday en route to a 5-0 victory in the title game of Regional A of the Edwardsville Sectional.

The victory sends the Warriors into the sectional semifinals on Thursday against Chatham Glenwood at 5:30 p.m. at the Edwardsville Sports Complex football field. The Redskins were a surprise 1-0 winner over Edwardsville in the Regional C championship game Monday.

"I hope we don't play a physical team," said Scott Stone, who again led the way with two goals and two assists in the win over Wood River (8-8-2). "I asked Jim Hawkins if I could borrow some of his hockey equipment."

Stone said that as he limped to the locker room after being a target of the Oilers all night, it resembled pro wrestling when Stone assisted on John VanBuskirk's second goal in the first quarter. Ryan Hinthorne hammered Stone to the turf in the corner as VanBuskirk came out and scored almost a carbon copy of his first goal.

Scott showed some emotional toughness. Warrior coach Gene Baker said. "It looked like they were going after our best players."

Stone and VanBuskirk were both hobbling when the game ended. But they put some hurt on the Oilers themselves. VanBuskirk scored at 6:40 when Stone gave him the ball on a short corner kick. VanBuskirk dribbled out of the corner and drilled a low shot just inside the post on the short side. It was an instant replay at 14:06. This time VanBuskirk's hard shot deflected off an Oiler defender behind keeper Brady Davis.

"We've got that play working good," said Stone. "We rotate between the short corner kick, the long kick and the kick to the short wall."

After two assists, Stone scored one himself with 50 seconds left in the half. He took a pass from Troy Adamitis flying down the left wing and shot smartly into the far corner.

It was Chris Nolan's turn to set up Stone for his ninth goal of the season at 47:27 of the third quarter. Stone cut to the middle from the right wing and blasted a point blank shot into the upper corner for a 4-0 Warrior lead.

Danny Weathers finished off the scoring at 58:01 with a great shot into the lower left corner off an assist by Chris Ryan.

"This is a good one for us," said Baker. "We're 8-12 now, so we can still finish with a good record."

Stone said the loss to St. Louis U. High last week served as a wakeup call.

"We shouldn't have lost that game," he said. "But maybe it's good that we did. We had a good team meeting after that game without the coaches. We weren't

Forest Park sponsoring AAU wrestling festival

By Ceria Milburn-Dodd

Wrestlers will have a chance to tune up, and wrestling fans will have a chance to see the "future" of high school and college wrestling in the St. Louis Area by watching the AAU Fall Wrestling Festival on Saturday at Forest Park Community College.

Wrestlers in age divisions and weight groups from fifth grade to open-division (college and post-college) will participate. Divisions include grades 8 and Under, grades 9-10, 11-12 and Open, including the high school, college and post-graduate wrestlers.

"I decided there was an interest in a fall tournament, which is always held (just) before the high school season starts their season," said Forest Park wrestling coach and tournament chairman Jack Crider.

"They are in pre-season training now. The ones who have been working out are getting ready for the high school season, and this is an opportunity for them to have fun and get a little competition. We have shorter matches, give out awards for fastest pin and most pins in each division."

The "aura" surrounding the tournament and several other wrestling events Forest Park holds have a great impact on St. Louis area amateur high school and college wrestling. Forest Park held the first freestyle wrestling tournament in the state in 1969, Crider's first year as coach, and was the first to have age-group wrestling.

"That changed everything," Crider said. "When I came here there was youth wrestling, but you'd have 9-year-olds wrestling 15-year-olds. I sold everybody on age group wrestling, and the first meet or so we had 150 kids in the meet. Now there are that many in some wrestling clubs, and probably about 2,000 kids in

Crider's Forest Park wrestling team, which has placed consistently among the top 20 junior college teams nationally, and last year had a national championship, DeShawn champion Brian Jackson—wrestled the tournament nearly every year as grade schoolers and high school wrestlers.

"Just about all of them have wrestled this tournament," Crider said. "Anybody who takes his wrestling seriously will wrestle here, come to clinics, come to our open (the St. Louis Open later this fall) and wrestle in a club. We have wrestlers from St. Louis, the Illinois state, and some from the Kansas City area."

Wrestlers may register and weigh in at the tournament from 9-10 a.m. Saturday. Competition, set up in high-school type format including wrestlingbacks, will begin at 11 a.m. Medals will be awarded to the top three place finishers in each weight.

Cost is $7 per wrestler. AAU registration is required, and 1988 registration is still valid for this tournament. Wrestlers who do not have a valid card may purchase a 1989 card at the tournament, good for this tournament and AAU tournaments in 1989.

'Saves' winner off to New York

E.J. Tipton of St. Louis is the winner of the "Todd Worrell Saves Contest" co-sponsored by the Suburban Journals and the Leukemia Society.

The contest was held in conjunction with the society's recent televised fund-raiser, which netted $100,000 in local pledges earmarked for the fight against leukemia.

Tipton wins a trip for two to New York for the first Cardinals series of the 1989 season against the Mets. Along with tickets to baseball games, the prize includes air fare and two nights at the Marriott Hotel in New York.

Tipton's winning guess was 32 saves. Many contestants guessed the correct number of saves that Worrell would record during the 1988 season. Tipton's name was chosen in a drawing of those contestants.

Gallup survey for the American Society for Quality Control:

General Motors leads all carmakers when consumers rate companies for high quality.

✓ General Motors
 Ford
 Chrysler
 Toyota
 Honda
 Mercedes-Benz

A Gallup survey conducted for the American Society for Quality Control gave consumers a chance to pick the companies they associated with high quality products. American or imports. In any business at all—electronics, computers, manufacturing...anything.

General Motors is proud that, with so much freedom, consumers picked GM ahead of every other car manufacturer, foreign or domestic.

But we're not surprised.

For one thing, the survey pointed up the areas consumers emphasize when they define quality—product performance, durability, ease of repair, customer service, and overall satisfaction. All areas where General Motors is focusing its teamwork and technology to make great cars and trucks.

For another thing, GM has been hearing great things about our products and our satisfied customers from other sources lately.

✓ Cadillac, Buick, and Oldsmobile were the only American automobiles to make the top ten in the latest J. D. Power Initial Quality Survey.

✓ GM cars were rated the best American makes in the latest HLDI report on overall injury loss experience.

✓ GM cars swept the field in MOTOR TREND's 1988 Car of the Year Awards.

✓ Chevrolet's full-size pickup is FOUR WHEELER's "4x4 of the year," and it made this year's list of top farm products in FARM INDUSTRY NEWS.

Throughout General Motors, people are teaming up to put the best thinking and the best technology into the best products in GM history. All of GM is going all out for you. We're taking our cues from our customers, so it's great to hear that consumers think so highly of us. And it's particularly great to hear it from the American Society for Quality Control.
